Downtown needs a manager

Fifth in a series that will explore the attractiveness and viability of downtown Andover and its business mix. The series will look at the possibility of a parking garage, the retail mix downtown, planning issues and what residents and town officials want from their downtown.

By Don Staruk

Sandra Hull's job is to ensure the vitality of downtown Wooster, Ohio, and it's time, she says, that Andover hired someone in a similar role here - to plan, promote and protect the future of downtown Andover.

She also says Andover should not pursue a large anchor store for the downtown; that the town should encourage specialty stores to settle here instead, and that it might be wise to postpone considering building a parking garage in the downtown.

Ms. Hull, executive director of the Main Street Wooster program, was in Andover visiting family during the Thanksgiving weekend. She offered to come back to Andover to speak with the group of local business owners and others here who for the past year have been looking at ways to vitalize the downtown.

After hearing Tuesday morning about some of Ms. Hull's comments, members of

Widows/Widowers Group throws 'lifeline' to young widow(er)s

By Neil Fater

Lori Maguire moved to Andover in June of 1986 with her husband and their three elementary-school-age children. A few months later her husband was dead and she felt alone in her grief.

But like hundreds of other widows and widowers in the Merrimack Valley area, Ms. Maguire says she discovered she was not alone, thanks to the Young Widows and Widowers group. Founded in Andover in 1983, the group recently celebrated its 13th year with a reunion party.

Alice Collins, who lost her husband, Stephen, in 1995, calls the group "a lifeline."

"It's a place for support, and a place to learn about what's happening to you," said Ms. Collins, of Reading. "People in the group care for each other, provide valuable advice

Heating problems could close AHS

By Neil Fater

Dick Neal, superintendent of schools, has said if two current problems at Andover High School are not corrected soon he may send High School students home and shut down the school.

"It isn't something that we want to do, but it is a health condition," Mr. Neal told the School Committee Tuesday night.

Continued and significant problems with the newly installed heating and communication systems at the construction-plagued school have brought the school department to this decision, explained Mr. Neal.

There have been times when areas of the building have not had any heat, he said. As for the new intercom system and the bells-communication system, Mr. Neal said school officials have difficulty getting to the system's control panel because it's located in a construction area.

"If the intercom communication situation continues to be a problem so we can't communicate to all parts of the building" for several weeks, or if "serious cold" affects classrooms, then Mr. Neal said he may send students home. Mr. Neal said the problems affect enough of Andover High School that he would release the entire student body.

Tom Meyers, teachers union president, said he will support a decision to close Andover High if classrooms become too cold.

"If it's not conducive to learning then that's Dick Neal's call," said Mr. Meyers.

Mr. Meyers said the teachers union called a meeting of the town manager, school officials and teacher representatives Monday because of conditions at the school - the most

'Renaissance woman' is into everything

By Neil Fater

There can't be too many animal lovers who keep a deer's head in their freezer. Then again, there can't be too many Angelina Janet Caiatis either.

Ms. Caiati, of Meadowbrook Drive, is involved in a little of everything. We're talking here about a person who collects rocks.

In fact, she and her husband, Vito, collect so many different items they don't have any cars in their two-car garage. Ms. Caiati says for her December birthday her husband cleans out enough of the garage for her to pull her car in for the winter.

"You know what I'm most proud of? With all this stuff?" asks Ms. Caiati, gesturing to the beautiful pottery, photographs and other items she has created and collected. "This is all thrills. It's my sons, my two sons."

Ms. Caiati is the cable-TV camera woman who sends School Committee meetings into Andover homes. Often, her involvement doesn't stop there. She's been known to get involved in committee discussions, drag a member back into the room for a vote, and even pass notes to the press during serious exchanges that say things like "How 'bout them Yankees?"

"There's nothing at the School Committee meeting that I hear that I haven't heard before. The only thing that changes is the dollar amount," says Ms. Caiati. "We're going into the next century and things need to change - and they never seem to."

Conversely, things are always changing in the Caiati household because Ms. Caiati is always into something new.

Besides televising the School Committee meetings, Ms. Caiati is putting together a journal as the official photographer for 350th events. She also takes baby pictures at a Salem JC Penney, saying "You know what? I get paid diddly and I love it."

Ms. Caiati went back to school for her associate's degree in commercial art, became a notary public while working for a lawyer and is currently taking pottery classes at a museum. She jokingly called herself "a Renaissance woman."

"I can't focus on one thing. I'll start my way up the steps to do something and then I'll start something else," she says. "I'll read three books at a time."

Although she claims to have less rhythm than Steve Martin, Ms. Caiati says she's learned to play the piano, recorder, flute, guitar and clarinet. She also says she's never mastered any of them.

As a visitor takes a seat in her home she asks, "Do I look like a murderer? I killed a rabbit on the way home."

Two minutes and seven topics later she's asked if hitting the animal bothers her.

"I've been known to stop traffic to pick up an animal. Not known to - I do. I've stopped traffic to pick up a turtle," she says.

This makes it all the more interesting to know why she keeps a deer head in the freezer in her garage - one of the seven tidbits she dropped during the previous two minutes.

Ms. Caiati says her husband has been hunting for 35 years and "in all that time he's only got one deer." So, when he got this one the Caiatis figured they'd find a taxidermist and have the head stuffed.

"So we put the head in the freezer for a week or two to figure out where we wanted to have it taxidermied," she says. "That was three years ago."

Dressing up

By Catherine Cannon

For a full year, Lauren Whitley had been working diligently on her own exhibit for the Museum of Fine Arts, entitled, "Dressing Up: Children's Fashions 1720-1920." The project opened for public viewing Nov. 20.

"I chose the best costumes that the museum offered," she said, "to create a chronological display of the history of art, focusing on children and how they portrayed themselves."

Children were considered "mini adults" during the 1700s and were expected to dress and behave in the proper fashion. However, these attitudes changed by the 1900s, when the active child's dress became simple and functional, said Ms. Whitley, the daughter of Paul and Leslie Whitley, of Virginia Road.

The typical dress attire for a child in the 1700s consisted of heavy velvets and brocades. It was also common for both young girls and boys to wear dresses. The 1800s presented a time in which dress displayed an individual's social status. Prosperous middle-class children would dress ostentatiously in order to portray their wealth and social position, according to Ms. Whitley. By the 1900s girls' "high-necked yoke dresses" gave way to shorter dresses like the Orange Silk Girl's Panty Dress, and boy's knickerbockers transformed into shorts.

More than 40 ensembles from the museum's collection are on display. Toys, furniture, paintings, photographs and children's accessories will add to the splendor of Ms. Whitley's exhibit.

Ms. Whitley, 33, has been working at the Museum of Fine Arts, as the assistant curator of the Textiles and Costume Collection, Department of European Decorative Arts and Sculpture, since 1992. She received her master of arts degree from the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City. Currently, she lives in Boston. She says she's relieved that her efforts for this project are complete. Ms. Whitley's presentation at the Museum of Fine Arts will be on display through the end of March.

2-year-old princess

The portrait that photographer Mark Spencer of Carriage House Photography took of his daughter on her second birthday was a personal treasure. Judges around the country must have thought highly of it too. Leah's portrait, entitled "La Petite Princess," is being displayed in Epcot Center at Disney World in Florida.

The 150 prints in the exhibit were chosen from more than 12,000 entries from around the world by Professional Photographers of America, Eastman Kodak Company and Walt Disney World. The exhibit opened in mid-October and will close in mid-December. La Petite Princess also was chosen by the Professional Photographers of America to be part of its Loan Collection for 1996, a collection of approximately 500 prints from the entries for the Epcot exhibit. An illustrative portrait of a couple was also selected to be included in the Loan Collection.

Mr. Spencer's achievements came six months after the New Hampshire Professional Photographers selected one of his portraits to receive the Kodak Gallery Award and the Fuji Masterpiece Award for best portrait. It was one of the few times that the portrait categories of the two major award sponsors were both won by distinct images from the same photographer.

Timber!

The town received a check recently from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management. Its total? $7.06. Yup, $7.06.

It seems that the state disbursed a total of $7,850 in payments to 20 communities throughout the state "for harvesting activities on state-owned lands from October of 1995 through June 1996."

Legislation passed in 1991 directs that a percentage of revenues from timber harvesting on state land go directly to the community.

"Although fees paid to some towns may seem modest, they are based on actual timber harvest receipts at the time of sale," according to the press release from the Department of Environmental Management.

The community that received the largest check was Hubbardston; its check was for $1,683.28. Actually, Andover's was the smallest check. The only other northeastern community that received a check was Ipswich, and that check was for $31.08.

Heating problems could close Andover High School

significant of which is that new boilers are not turning on when the temperature drops.

"It's a problem that needs to be addressed immediately. It needs a fix," said Mr. Neal. "It's not only hurting the learning environment it's also taking a great deal of time to deal with administratively."

Mr. Neal said Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, planned to meet with the contractor and architects Wednesday to solve the heating and communication problems.

Mr. Stapczynski said Wednesday morning that the senior field representative met with the heating subcontractor Monday. "It's being attended to and has a very, very high priority on everybody's list of issues. We hope to have the thing fixed ASAP."

Mr. Stapczynski said he would meet with the architect late Wednesday to talk about "preventing or getting ahead of these problems."

"I think it's a normal sort of debugging problem," he said. "Nobody's come to me and said it's poorly designed or improperly installed."

As far as the communications system goes, Mr. Stapczynski said, "I know that's being attended to, but I can't tell you if there's been a meeting this week or not. But I know that's one of the high priorities."

Building Inspector Kaija Gilmore sent the contractor a letter specifying the safety precautions they should follow.

"The heat is a tremendous, tremendous problem. In fact, the heat went off (Tuesday) in the school" because of damage to a heating pipe, said Mr. Meyers. "Our concern is, if heat is shutting down in a newly-built area then the town manager must (act)."

Mr. Meyers said the problem is that the boilers shut off when areas reach the proper temperature, but the boilers don't switch back on when the temperature falls again. Mr. Meyers said he fears a situation where the temperature drops below zero during a weekend when school officials are not in the building.

If the heat doesn't turn on, he said, "We're going to be in a heck of a fix with pipes freezing."

Mr. Meyers said Steve Richardson, assistant principal, has been busy adjusting and monitoring the thermostats throughout the High School in an effort to keep classrooms comfortable.

"I think the administration at Andover High should be applauded. They're spending a tremendous amount of time with those things to provide a proper teaching environment," said Mr. Meyers.

Heating has been a problem at the High School since the weather turned cold. According to the Nov. 25 Mead Consulting report, "There were several boiler failures over the past month. The problem appears to be with the controls. This is part of the new system and under Stone-Congress' warranty."

The report goes on to say, "Problems with the intercom and bell system are interfering with school operations. Because the entire system is not on line, the computer equipment required to adjust the bells has not been installed. The computer has been ordered. We have not been provided with a delivery date."

The High School construction project also has had several other problems during the past few weeks, including several instances during demolition work where hunks of debris fell through openings on the second floor into the cafeteria below. Demolition has taken place during non-school hours and no one was hurt.

Stone Congress, the contractor, used a public relations firm to vehemently deny charges that there are safety problems on the job.

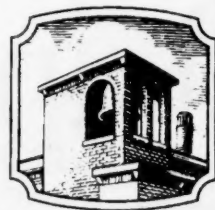

"During the course of the project, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has conducted two comprehensive inspections and found no safety violations whatsoever," said David Patrick, president of Stone Building Company. "We think the charges that have been leveled against us are unfair."

Stone-Congress said the problem is the town didn't give them proper as-built drawings and an as-built survey conducted by the architect "was incomplete and inaccurate."

"As a result, our crews have come upon concealed pipes, hidden holes, and other unexpected hazards, resulting in the three incidents of debris falling," said Tom Silva, Stone-Congress' project manager.

Next building project for schools will be costly

By Neil Fater

Early cost estimates for the next school-expansion project for the middle and elementary levels have arrived and the general reaction from town and school officials seems to be - Gulp!

A consultant told the School Committee Tuesday the nine options for construction he looked at will range in cost from about $31 million to $43 million.

When told of this Wednesday morning, Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, said, "Let me regain my composure here and pick myself off the floor."

"Let's talk cheap," was Lloyd Willey's response to the consultant's presentation.

"Is there a reason we can't have Doherty be significantly bigger than West by 200 students?" he asked

Mr. Willey suggested adding on to Doherty Middle School only to produce a middle school for 1,100 students (Doherty) and a middle school for 600 students (West).

"This is not the way to plan a school", said Frank Tedesco, the consultant. "If you're just looking to warehouse students, then you can do it."

Mr. Tedesco said a school system should decide what educational program it wants and build the school around that.

"The difficulty I think we have is, is there a way we can do it without touching another building and opening that can of worms," said Susan Dalton, committee member. "I don't like tar and feathers that much."

"There are two sides to this whole issue here, Susan. There's the political side and that's yours and there's the educational side," said Dick Neal, superintendent. "I wouldn't propose something that's excellent politically and poor educationally."

"I'm not going to sacrifice the educational side of it for the sake of getting it passed," he said. "What's right is what's right."

The committee members and Mr. Neal agreed that the best way to approach this new building project is to look at all the options. They said they hope to find a cheaper alternative to Mr. Tedesco's options.

Deadline today for Community Spirit Award

The Townsman is looking for nominations for its Community Spirit Award, to be given at the first of the year to an organization or individual who has done something extraordinary for the town or for individuals in town.

Last year's winner was Norma Gammon, chairwoman of the 350th Anniversary Committee.

The newspaper is asking groups or individuals to nominate people or organizations for the award. A panel of five community people will make the award decision.

Making the award will be a good way for the community to recognize individuals and groups that reach out to different groups or people in town. To be eligible, the organization, the service delivered, or the individual has to be Andover-based.

Examples of appropriate nominations would be a school grade that has "adopted" a needy person; a business that drives people to medical appointments; a group that raised the cash to buy a wheelchair for an individual; a church or temple group that in some way helps a needy family or group; or an individual who reads to a shut-in person.

Please write the nomination in one page or less. Include your name and phone number.

Nominations are due Thursday, Dec. 5, at 5 p.m. Questions? Call Editor Perry Colmore at 508-475-1943. If you would like to fax your nomination, send it to 508-470-2819. If you'd like to e-mail it, send to Townsman@aol.com; or send it to Community Spirit Award, Andover Townsman, 33 Chestnut St., Andover MA 01810.

United Way has raised 60 percent of its goal

The Greater Lawrence United Way campaign "has raised $822,821 - 60 percent of its $1,372,347 goal," said area chairman William Lane, president of Holy Family Hospital, at a mid-campaign report session Nov. 25 sponsored by the Andover Marriott.

Volunteers, supporters and representatives of agencies funded by United Way gathered with Mr. Lane and general campaign chairwoman Niki Tsongas to recognize volunteers, thank companies and make the push for the final stretch of the campaign. Most funds are raised through employee payroll deduction plans with the rest from corporate gifts, foundations and individual donations; the Greater Lawrence team raises funds in Andover, North Andover, Methuen and Lawrence.

Reaching the goal, said Mr. Lane, "is possible," thanks to the support of new companies and long-term contributors. "However, the campaign is not over, and we need everyone's help. People can reach many agencies through a single gift with assurance that those agencies serve a necessary charitable purpose, are properly managed and operate efficiently and effectively."

United Way returns to the community 90 cents of every dollar raised, funding agencies such as the Boys and Girls Club, Scouts, Catholic Charities, Red Cross, Salvation Army and the VNA, as well as participating in community initiatives such as Success by Six.

real estate for 10 years. Mr. Bloom is a member of Northeast Association of Realtors, where he has held numerous Employee drives are underway at the schools and towns of Lawrence, Andover, North Andover and Methuen and despite the disastrous fire a year ago, Methuen's Malden Mills will run a fund drive next month. The organization's largest contributor, North Andover's Lucent Technologies, has already completed its drive, raising $289,500, up 10 percent from last year.

New companies participating this year include Yankee Alliance of Andover, Mariner Health Care of Methuen and Berkley Retirement Center of Lawrence. Copilabs Connection in Lawrence, also a new contributor, completed its first employee campaign, raising more than $1,000.

The organizational goal, said Niki Tsongas, is $5.6 million, up from last year's results of $5.5 million. The organization also expects to raise nearly $2.3 million from other campaigns, most from United Ways of New England (UWONE), an organization comprised of more than 20 United Ways that raises funds from large corporations, such as Raytheon and Gillette, that have multiple locations.

The final campaign results will be announced at the campaign celebration Jan. 14 at Sheraton Rolling Green with allocations to agencies announced in February. Donations can be made directly to United Way, P.O. Box 527, Lawrence, Mass. 01842. Call United Way at 682-5296 for further information.

positions, and the Northeast Builders Association. He is on the governing board at Temple Emanuel and he is a board member of the Exchange Club of Methuen.

Mr. Bloom lives in Andover with his wife, Audrie, and children, Jackie and Matthew.

Dot Hardock

The Andover office of DeWolfe New England announces that realtor Dot Hardock has received the DeWolfe New England Certification as a buyers agent.

The concept of a real estate agent representing the purchaser of a home, rather than the seller, originated in California in the 1980s. This aspect of real estate sales provides for Ms. Hardock to represent and look out for the best interests of the home buyer. Ms. Hardock's personal experiences while living in Pennsylvania, Washington, D.C., North Carolina, Louisiana, California, New Jersey and Virginia have given her insight into the concerns and apprehensions of a home buyer. The Buyers Agent Certification is in addition to her certification as a sellers agent and completes her ability to serve home sellers and buyers equally.

Kristi Williams

Kristi Williams of Andover has successfully completed Course 302 of the 1996 Realtor Institute of Massachusetts held recently at Massachusetts Association of Realtors state headquarters in Waltham. ## HOME BUYERS: How to Avoid Paying Too Much

Part of a continuing series of valuable tips to help you get the most for your investment, whether you're buying your first home or your fifth.

Shop for a Mortgage Before You Shop for a Home

Getting a loan preapproval is the smart way to shop for a home. It tells sellers

that you're a serious

prospect, and you know in advance the maximum mortgage you can afford. Make sure you get a commitment in writing. Many buyers make the mistake of learning that they qualify for without getting a written preapproval.

The good news is that it's easier than ever to qualify for a home loan, and there are many good loans to choose from.

Two UMass Lowell professors with Andover connections, Giampiero Pecelli and Byung Kim of the Computer Science Department, have been awarded a $196,520 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF) in the area of networking and communication research. The grant is for a two-year period.

The research, titled "Study of Feedback Congestion Control Techniques," will investigate the new asynchronous transfer mode standard for high-speed transfer of multiple types of data through networks.

The investigators described the problem as

UMass Lowell professors win grant for computer research - Professors Byung Kim (seated) and Giampiero Pecelli confer on plans for their research in feedback congestion control, funded by a National Science Foundation Grant.

"trying to control the amounts of information in network traffic so as not to overwhelm the system." Applications in which people are moving large amounts of data, such as video, over great distances run the risk of lost information. Others, less time-critical, need to make effective use of the remaining bandwidth.

"A simple feedback mechanism to tell the sending computer to slow down the flow of information is not so easy because of the volume of information in the pipeline already," said Prof. Pecelli. "And a feedback mechanism that anticipates congestion too early can stop the transmission unnecessarily and raise costs."

Prof. Pecelli and his wife, Myra Jean PELLE, have lived in Andover for 15 years. Their three children attend Phillips Academy.

Prof. Kim lives in Lexington with his wife, Eunice, is music director of West Parish Church. Their two children attend Lexington public schools.

Genetics Institute Inc., which has an office at One Burt Road, announced the formation of a college scholarship program for students with hemophilia B at the 48th annual meeting of the National Hemophilia Foundation (NHF) in San Diego, Calif. The program, Sharing a Brighter Tomorrow, is intended to provide support for promising students with hemophilia B in pursuing an undergraduate college education.

"It is particularly appropriate to announce a new educational program at NHF, where the optimism and dedication of the hemophilia community is deeply felt," said Gabriel Schmergel, president and chief executive officer of Genetics Institute.

The program will award four $5,000 scholarships to applicants who have distinguished themselves in academic achievement and creative expression. The awards can be used for tuition and/or room and board at an accredited college. The competition is open to all students with hemophilia B who will attend college full-time in the fall of 1997.

Applications will be available at NHF chapters and hemophilia treatment centers and on Genetics Institute's World Web site (<http://www.genetics.com>) and via e-mail (info@genetics.com).

Final candidates will be reviewed by an independent scholarship board of hemophilia health-care professionals and a Genetics Institute scientist. Students will be judged on the basis of academic excellence, recommendations and personal expression.

The winners will be announced in April and awards will be sent to their respective universities on their behalf.

Hemophilia B is a hereditary disorder caused by a deficiency or defect in factor IX, one of a number of proteins involved in blood clotting. Factor IX deficiency results in frequent hemorrhages that can be crippling and life-threatening.

Genetics Institute recently filed marketing applications in the U.S., Europe and Canada for authorization to market its recombinant factor IX for treating hemophilia B. Genetics Institute also manufactures the most widely prescribed factor VIII product for the treatment of hemophilia A, marketed by Baxter Healthcare Corporation as Recombinant Antihemophilic Factor (Recombinant).

These mentors promote technical career choices

Eighteen seventh- and eighth-graders, Barbara Neal, their teacher, and Vickie Simms, West Middle School principal, met on Tuesday before Thanksgiving with three Andover-resident mentors – Chuck Medler, Melanie Ziegler, and David Whitney – to kickoff the first Andover chapter of a growing national program. Its goal is to increase interest in technical career choices among America's young people. The program, Future Scientists and Engineers of America or FSEA, began in California following a 1990 study by the Orange County Engineering Council of the disastrous decline in technical field enrollments by US-born students. FSEA wants to recruit women and minority race students who are badly under represented in the current population of American engineers and scientists.

FSEA chapters meet weekly to work on a sequence of structured design problems appropriate to the students' ages. More than 30 projects, grouped into elementary-, middle- and high-school levels, have been developed so far by FSEA leaders. This new chapter will first build a wind-sail powered land yacht with distance, speed, direction control, beauty, originality, and cost design goals. All projects are constructed from identical parts kits supplied by FSEA. The mentors and teacher found the Land Yacht project providing a more than adequate challenge during their September training session.

The mentors and teacher act only as guides to the experimental process required for each project. Students work in teams of two or three. Innovation, trial and error, reasoning, and friendly spying on other teams characterize the FSEA approach. Each project lasts from three to six weeks, depending on difficulty and the program will continue throughout the school year.

"A Chapter in Every School in the Country" is the ambitious goal set by the FSEA founder and executive director George Westrom, an engineer and visionary at a Southern California company. Beginning with clubs at a few local schools in 1992-'93, there are now more than 100 clubs in several states.

Handing over the money to support the new FSEA chapter at West Middle School are mentors David Whitney (Argilla Road), Melanie Ziegler (Mohawk Road), regional FSEA coordinator Chris Noble (a Winchester resident), mentor Chuck Medler (Chestnut Street), and West Middle School mathematics teacher Barbara Neal. The mentors are senior staff members at TASC Inc., an information technology company in Reading, which provided the $1,000 chapter sponsorship through its Community Action Program.

"A hundred years from now it will not matter what my bank account was, the sort of house I lived in, or the kind of car I drove – the world may be different because I was important in the life of a child."

– A quote from the FSEA material aimed at would-be mentors and leaders

Mentors

Word is spreading by way of success stories in the popular and technical press and, of course, the Internet (<http://www.fsea.org>).

FSEA has just been awarded nearly $200,000 by the National Science Foundation to promote its spread throughout the country.

Chuck Medler of Chestnut Street, an engineer at TASC Inc. in Reading and one of the West Middle School mentors, became aware of FSEA in a newsletter from a professional engineering society. Following meetings with Ms. Simms last summer, Dr. Medler submitted a request for financial support to TASC's newly formed Community Action Team and recruited two other Andover residents, Melanie Ziegler and David Whitney, to also serve as club mentors. TASC agreed to provide the $1,000 that will support all chapter activities through a full school year. Raytheon is also actively involved sponsoring chapters in Tewksbury and Foxborough and has pledged to support chapters in every city in Massachusetts in which they have a facility.

To learn more about FSEA and perhaps encouraging the start of a new chapter in another Andover school, look at the Internet site or contact Chuck Medler at Anaheim, Calif., at 475-5351. Call the national office in fseahqd@aol.com/.

350th finale, time capsule burial, Santa Parade this Sunday

By Virginia Lopez Begg
350th Committee

The year-long celebration of Andover's 350th Anniversary will reach its grand finale Sunday, Dec. 8, with a parade, closing ceremonies and burial of a time capsule. The 350th Committee is encouraging a large turnout. "The more, the merrier," says committee chairman Norma Gammon.

The parade kicks off at 1:30 p.m., and will be held in tandem with Andover firefighters' annual Santa Parade, after last Sunday's rain postponement. To celebrate the community feeling of the 350th anniversary, anyone who wishes to march in the parade is invited to do so. Marchers should meet at 1 p.m. at the Senior Center.

Closing ceremonies will take place at Old Town Hall on Main Street, following the parade. The Rev. Calvin Muti of South Church, Andover's oldest faith community, will deliver the invocation. The Andover High School band will then play the national anthem, and a representative of the senior citizens will pass a torch to a high school student.

"Andover, the Home of America" has been the theme of the town's 350th anniversary, a tribute to the fact that the song, more familiarly known as "My Country 'Tis of Thee," was written here more than a century and a half ago. A plaque engraved with the words to America will be unveiled by Selectman Larry Larsen, and Gloria Lyons will sing the beloved anthem.

James Barenboim, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, will pass a torch representing community spirit to Mary Claire speak to close out the year on behalf of the 350th Committee.

The parade route will include Whittier, Elm, Main, Punchard and finish on Bartlet Street near Doherty Middle School.

Anyone who wishes to march in the parade should notify Mr. Hinckley and meet at the Doherty Middle School promptly at 12:30 p.m. to prepare for the parade activities.

According to the Andover Police Department, there will be no parking on Main Street from Elm Square to Punchard Avenue from 12:30 to 3 p.m.

THE NATION'S TALLEST CHRISTMAS TREE

The tallest Christmas tree in the USA heads through Shawsheen Square last week, almost home at Brickstone Square. About 1,000 yards of twine tied back the tree's branches for the ride.

Brickstone tree is 97 feet tall, 50 feet around

In preparation for the lighting of the Brickstone Christmas tree on Sunday, Dec. 1, the tree was hoisted into place Saturday, Nov. 23, at noon at Brickstone Square office complex. The 97-foot tree is nearly twice the size of the tree at Boston's Prudential Center (50 feet) and tops the tree at New York's Rockefeller Center (90 feet). The diameter of Brickstone's tree at 50 feet is as big around as the Prudential Center's tree is tall. A 150-ton crane and a crew from Riverside Landscaping are required to raise the tree to its final position.

The Brickstone tree, which arrived from Connecticut by flatbed trailer, was selected earlier this year by Mark Donohoe, president of Riverside Landscaping. Mr. Donohoe flew in a small plane to search for the perfect "in-trouble tree," one that threatens property or electric wires. The tree's stump will be ground out and a new tree will be planted in its place. In addition, 97 saplings, one for each foot of the Brickstone tree, will be planted by the Nova Scotia-based Plant-a-Tree Foundation worldwide.

The tree was then strung with more than 30,000 multi-colored lights, hung with 75 bows and balls and topped by a 3-foot snowflake.

About the tree-lighting event

The Dec. 1 tree-lighting event included many activities, including reindeer carousel, costumed characters and complimentary refreshments. After the lighting, Santa gave a holiday greeting and opened Santa's Village, complete with a petting zoo. The trunk from last year's tree was transformed on-site into life-size carvings by chainsaw carver Hal MacIntosh of New York's Catskills Mountains.

Call the Event Hotline at 749-3008.

Photos by Lisa Adelsberger

The 1996 Brickstone Christmas tree goes electric.

Amy Fowler, 10, and her dad, James Fowler of Andover, count down to the lighting of the tree on Sunday evening. The rain held off just long enough so that the event was not postponed.

At the Brickstone event are official tree lighters Morgan Timblin, 10, Becky Holt, 10, Courtney Daly, 5, and Ashley Rasmussen, 12. Tonight, Thursday, Dec. 5, is Celebrity Night, with many special appearances.

Danielle Burke, 5, and her mother, Doris Burke, wait for the tree to be lit. Danielle had her ears pierced that day, selecting a red stone for Christmas. Her father, Garry Burke, owns Burke Funeral Home.

Midway through the 50 minutes of entertainment there will be an intermission, during which refreshments will be on sale.

Proceeds will benefit the children of Shawsheen School.

At Greater Lawrence Technical School students are provided with technical training in a field of their choice. The future always looks bright for our graduates because they enter the work force with the hands-on training required by employers. Many students participate in Co-Op programs where they earn money working in an entry level job while learning academic material and classwork on the other week.

We are proud to say that over the past thirty years, the majority of our graduates have gone into their field of choice right after graduation. Others have continued their training in college.

OBITUARIES

James R. Lynch 32-year veteran of Andover police force

James R. Lynch, 82, of Andover died Tuesday, Nov. 26, at Prescott Nursing Home in North Andover.

Mr. Lynch was born and educated in Andover. He graduated from Pynchard High School in 1931.

Mr. Lynch joined the Andover Police Department in 1940, was promoted to sergeant in 1953 and retired in 1972.

"The police officers who came to the wake, they more than emphasized that my father was fair," his son, Deputy Fire Chief James Lynch Jr., said this week. "I think that probably outlines my father's life. He was definitely a fair person."

His father is also remembered by many in town as being fast on his feet, according to Dep. Lynch. If there was a chase involving a shoplifter or a suspect in a house break, even if it was over a number of miles, nine out of 10 times his father would catch his prey, he said.

"They used to say that, back then, if there was a high-speed chase in town, it didn't necessarily mean a cruiser was involved," Dep. Lynch said.

But his father was never a track star. In high school he worked at Walnuthurst Dairy, which used to be at 283 S. Main St. He continued working there after high school, going to school to learn the pasteurization process, and learning the rest of the dairy business.

"He delivered milk with a horse and buggy," Dep. Lynch said.

He left the dairy when he joined the police force in 1940. Back then there were no radios in the cruisers. Dep. Lynch said he remembers his father telling him that officers took calls at the station, which was then in Old Town Hall on Main Street, and if there was a problem out on River Road, they went out and took care of it themselves.

Dep. Lynch remembers that when the state was building Route 495, his father would always take the extra details "to provide" for his family. And during World War II, while also working for the police department, he worked security at night at General Electric in Lynn.

"We didn't go on a lot of vacations and such, but he was always working to provide," Dep. Lynch said.

The elder Mr. Lynch attended St. Augustine Church.

Members of his family include his wife of 56 years, Anne (Roche) Lynch of Andover; daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Edward Buscema of Andover; sons, Thomas Lynch of Beverly, James Lynch of Andover and his wife, Judy Lynch, and Daniel Lynch of Williamstown and his wife, Sue Lynch; brothers, Joseph Lynch of Lawrence, Frank Lynch and Leo Lynch, both of Andover, and Richard Lynch of Reading; sister, Mary Kalodgy of Andover; 12 grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

A funeral Mass was said Saturday in St. Augustine Church. Burial was in St. Augustine Cemetery.

Arrangements were by Burke Funeral Home.

Lorenzo J. St. Cyr Longtime Sears employee

Lorenzo J. "Joe" St. Cyr, 73, of Andover died Wednesday, Nov. 27, at Lawrence General Hospital.

The former Dracut resident was born in Lowell and raised and educated in the Cambridge area. He graduated from Cambridge High School.

Mr. St. Cyr was employed by Sears Department Store for more than 45 years in the appliance servicing department.

He was a member of Teamsters Local No. 25 in Boston and an avid photographer.

He attended St. Theresa Church in Dracut.

Members of his family include his wife of 42 years, Rachel (Miner) St. Cyr of Andover; daughters, Janet R. St. Cyr of Dracut and her husband, Thomas J. Piekarski, Mariette R. St. Cyr of Lowell and Rita St. Cyr of Newton; a granddaughter; and several nieces and nephews.

A funeral Mass was said Saturday in St. Theresa Church. Burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery in Chelmsford.

Arrangements were by Dracut Funeral Home.

Memorial contributions may be made to Merrimack Valley Hospice, 1 Union St., Andover, 01810, or to American Cancer Society, 66-Y Concord St., Wilmington, Mass. 01887-2100.

These Thoughts*

LENDING AN EAR

All too often, people avoid friends and even family members who have suffered the loss of a loved one, either because they feel uncomfortable or do not know what to say or how to act. This avoidance problem is understandable in light of the fact that acknowledging the death heightens our own sense of mortality. However, if a grieving person wants to talk about his or her feelings, it should be understood that a person can offer comfort simply by listening. Those who do lend a sympathetic ear should concentrate on what is being said, instead of formulating what they plan to say next. Listeners should also avoid interruption and concentrate on how the grieving person is feeling. Finally, when the conversation comes to an end, no effort should be made to push further. It is perfectly acceptable to sit in silence, filled with the knowledge that comfort and support can also be lent by a person's sympathetic presence.

Throughout the grieving process, we may wish to use a variety of resources as we cope with loss. Our families and friends can often provide powerful assistance in our crisis. They can listen to us and support us. They can also reassure us that despite the loss and throughout our struggle, they still love and care about us. If support is not forthcoming or sufficient, be willing to seek additional or even complementary help as well. For more information, call BURKE FUNERAL HOME at 475-5200 or see us at 390 North Main Street.

As always, Christ Church will donate 10 percent of the proceeds to an outside charity. The fair committee has chosen Hancock Courts, the poorest housing project in the city of Lawrence, to receive 10 percent of the profits.

Most of the 198 apartments in this complex have female heads of household. Hancock Courts offers a summer program and an after-school program for children. The summer program meets five days a week and provides a nutritious lunch, snack, games and crafts.

The after-school program offers the same as well as homework assistance.

The children are encouraged to do well in school and are rewarded with special outings.

Last month they began a partnership with the Hennessey School. Children from Hennessey join

Young Widows and Widowers: 'They listen'

for everything from children to plumbing, and most importantly, they listen. It's a place to feel less alone with your sorrow, and it's a place to begin the healing process."

Young Widows and Widowers (YWW) was founded in 1983 after a chance meeting between a young widow and a social worker, according to Ms. Maguire, YWW's executive director. Because the widow didn't know any other young, widowed people, she and the social worker set out to create a new type of support group.

"One thing we're not, we're not a therapy group. We're a support group," said Ms. Maguire. "We kind of just let people come to our group and talk."

Although the YWW non-profit organization started small, there are now five chapters located across Eastern Mass. and New Hampshire.

Those associated with the group said attending one's first YWW meeting helps widowed people in their 20s, 30s, 40s and 50s to feel less isolated.

"It's very important because you think you're the only person who's young and widowed and then you go into a room of people who are all in the same boat," said John Yoder, who served for five years as YWW's president.

"I was in my 30s so I didn't know anybody else who had lost a spouse. So the initial shock is to discover all these people" in the same situation, said Ms. Maguire.

"There were about 40 people in the room the first night," she said. "That was the first reaction, this shock that there could be this many people."

Young widowed people tend to like the group because most widowed people's groups tend to be filled with older people who are at a different point in their lives. Ms. Collins said she went to one such support group before she found YWW.

"They were nice people. They were primarily in their 70s and 80s," she said. "It didn't feel like the right place for me at all."

But the YWW meeting felt different, she said. It also gave her hope.

"I guess I felt some kind of relief at that first meeting. I wanted to see that people got through this," she said. "You just don't feel that there's any life left at that point. You want to see how people come through this... What is the future going to be?"

Three for their crowd

The first YWW meeting people attend is one of three programs the non-profit organization offers to young widowed people.

This first program widows and widowers attend is a weekly meeting open to all young widowed people. Facilitators, including licensed social workers, guide group discussion. The focus of the meetings is providing support for the newly widowed people and the meetings are held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Marland Place during the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month. Typically, about 12 people attend each meeting, said Ms. Maguire.

"It takes a lot of courage to come into the group" because a person who's experienced trauma can have difficulty trusting the world again, said Francyne Fuller, a social worker who guides the Andover YWW group. "But the people in the group are warm and inviting."

"It gives them a place they can talk about what they're thinking, what they're feeling. They're certainly not behaving like everyone else in the world; (but) they are feeling like other people in the group," said Ms. Maguire. "They can know that everything they're feeling is normal."

Besides those weekly meetings, YWW also offers a program for those who have been widowed longer and are ready to talk about moving on. Finally, YWW offers social events, such as last month's reunion party, for members and their families.

Mr. Yoder and other widowed people said they felt awkward socializing again after their spouses' deaths, and it was nice to ease back into things by getting together with other widows and widowers.

Those who attend YWW meetings can give a donation to the non-profit organization to help cover expenses. Some people, such as social workers and Ms. Maguire, the executive director, are paid a stipend for their time and work, said Ms. Maguire.

Talking amongst themselves

From what members say, perhaps the most important aspect of the group is that it gives widowed people a place to talk openly about their grief.

"They need to tell their story because their story includes not only losing a husband or a wife, they've lost a part of who they are," said Ms. Fuller.

Unfortunately, widows and widowers said that while people are often there for them during the first months, after a while friends typically assume the widowed person doesn't need to talk about the loss any more. Often, that is not the case.

"I think people are there initially but then they go on," said Ms. Fuller. "People do make that mistake because on the outside they see (the widowed people) have gone back to work, they've gone back to (the supermarket), they've gone to school meetings."

"You don't forget because someone's just cut off their right arm and you don't forget about that," said Ms. Maguire. "But in the meantime the rest of the world is back on the treadmill and not paying attention."

In fact, Ms. Maguire said she believes it often takes six to eight months before a person's grief hits its deepest point. Some people wait a year or two before they come to their first YWW meeting, she said.

Ms. Fuller, the licensed social worker who has seen hundreds of people while working with YWW, is careful to say, "The grief process is unique for everybody." But she also acknowledges it can take months before many people feel the full pain of loss.

"It's very normal because in the beginning you feel pretty numb," she said. "You're numb. You're in a state of shock really. It's acute grief."

Ms. Fuller said the intensity of one's grief depends on factors such as the strength, nature and length of the marriage.

After the initial numbness starts to wear off, the grief can feel more painful than it did during the initial weeks or months. But Ms. Fuller said this can be a good sign.

"Although it feels worse, it's really a sign of progress. Although it feels painful, it's healthy," said Ms. Fuller. "It means you're moving through your grief."

"People are always re-processing grief but you don't re-process it with the same type of intensity," said Ms. Fuller. "I have the opportunity to see people who really move out of their grief and really build a rich and satisfying life for themselves."

Problem sharing

Ms. Collins indicated Ms. Fuller and YWW helped her to begin building her new life.

"It helped to see that people were at a point where they were making a decision on their life," she said. "At the beginning you don't look ahead, you're sort of just looking down."

Ms. Collins said talking with the group helped her to realize "some really basic things" such as how physical grief is. She said a person's back pain, sleeplessness, and restless energy may be caused by their grief.

YWW can also serve as the sounding board that widows and widowers lose when their spouse dies, she said.

When a person dies, the living spouse often is forced to assume roles and tasks he or she has never before done. When cancer took his wife, Mary, John Yoder had to assume more child-care responsibility for his four children. They were between the ages of 3 and 14, he said.

"That was difficult," said Mr. Yoder. "It helped just talking over (with the YWW group) what you're doing and how to be a good parent and that sort of thing."

"The parenting end of it is really a big help," said Ms. Collins, who's been raising three teen-agers. "It's hard to be the only parent at such an important part in your child's life."

Ms. Collins said the group also helps with practical matters. For instance, she learned when to change the oil in her car and how to take care of plumbing problems.

"I know what a snake is and how to use it," she said.

"Last winter we had more snow than we had ever seen and that was something we could all relate to," she said. "There's a surprising amount of laughter."

Members share horror stories about attempting tasks they're trying for the first time.

"When you come to a group with other people, there's lots of support. There's lots of validation," said Ms. Fuller.

Those seeking information about joining the group can call (508) 475-5556.

Consultant: The downtown needs a planner

the Andover group decided to hire a facilitator to help formalize a set of goals for their group. The group hopes to meet with the facilitator for a morning next month to map out a route to reach those goals, and possibly establish a job description for a position similar to Ms. Hull's.

No stranger

Ms. Hull lives in Ohio, but she is no stranger to Andover. Every summer growing up she spent one month at the home of her grandmother, the late Eleanor Castle, at 54 Abbot St., (now the home of Raymond Jr. and Joan Cannon). And 45 to 50 of her relatives still gather in Andover each year to celebrate Thanksgiving.

"We come back every year," she said last Friday during an interview at the Townsmen office.

They used to gather at her grandmother's house. Ms. Hull's brother and sister-in-law, Frank and Hanne Castle, still live at 14 Orchard St. But this year the clan used the Log Cabin at Phillips Academy for their reunion.

Ms. Hull's family has a long relationship with Phillips Academy. Her uncle, John M. Kemper, was headmaster from 1948 to 1971 and, according to Ms. Hull, ran it like a military academy.

"I went to Abbot (Academy) and at that time I was one of 19 generations who went to Abbot," Ms. Hull said. She graduated in 1958, before the Abbot and Phillips campuses were combined.

"One of the strengths of this town is that school," Ms. Hull said.

Main Street program

Ms. Hull was a speech therapist for 17 years before she and her family moved about 10 years ago from Illinois to Wooster, 60 miles southeast of Cleveland. She saw an ad in the newspaper, applied and landed the job of project coordinator for the Main Street Wooster project in January 1987.

"The Main Street process is a national program that utilizes the individual resources of each participating community," according to Ms. Hull. "The National Main Street Center is part of the National Trust for Historic Preservation."

A network membership fee of $195 a year allows a community access to resources from other network members. For instance, if the town wants to pursue the idea of a parking garage in the downtown, officials here could be in touch with member communities that already have built one, or are considering building one.

By the time they hired Ms. Hull, a group of Wooster business owners and others had been meeting for two years talking about plans for their downtown. Finally, the way Ms. Hull tells it, one group member said he enjoyed eating breakfast with the others once a month, but that they really had not accomplished anything, and that it was time to do something or give it up. They decided to hire a program manager to start implementing some of their ideas.

But first, they needed money. And they realized they had to show a commitment on the part of business and property owners in the downtown before they solicited the help of industry. They raised $20,000 from the downtown people, and with it hired Ms. Hull. They then went to industry and raised a matching $20,000 and were off and running.

Each year they have added to that original $40,000 budget, and last year had a working budget of $90,000, all from private sources.

Funding is available

By Don Staruk

There are a variety of sources for funding changes for a downtown and the Main Street program can help communities explore what is available.

The federal Community Reinvestment Act requires banks to reinvest in their communities, and the Main Street program is an attractive option for banks since it directly affects the areas where banks usually are located, according to Ms. Hull.

Wooster passed legislation that made it a Special Improvement District, which required the support of 51 percent of property owners in the downtown. Funds raised through special taxes on downtown property pays for soft-cost improvements, such as collection of trash from street barrels three times a week, snow plowing and other services that improve the downtown for everyone.

Banks can structure low-cost loans for property owners to use to improve signs and facades for stores.

Main Street Wooster had a University of Chicago tree specialist design a program for replacement of all the trees in the downtown. It then handed the design to the city and had the city implement it. At first they were called tree Nazis and a few other names for cutting down the old trees, Ms. Hull said. But the new trees provide aesthetic benefits without blocking storefronts, and now everyone loves them and the whole look of the downtown, Ms. Hull said.

Involve everybody

The Main Street approach involves organization, design, promotion and economic restructuring.

"All of these things have to be worked on at the same time for it to work," Ms. Hull said.

Wooster's 22-member board includes only two business owners and two property owners. Unlike the Chamber of Commerce, the Main Street program focuses only on the downtown. And in Wooster's case, city government was crucial to the process.

"Absolutely. I couldn't do it without them," she said.

Ms. Hull advised involving every facet of the community through meetings with small focus groups.

"You've got to keep them involved. You've got to keep them informed and let them be part of the decision making," she said.

The holiday lighting program that put lights in downtown Andover for the holidays this year is the type of project that boosts a downtown, Ms. Hull said. And the downtown "says so much about the rest of a community."

"It's the ambiance that's created that will bring people downtown," Ms. Hull said. "If people drive to Andover this year and say, 'Andover is beautiful,' that goes a long way."

Accomplishments

The accomplishments of Main Street Wooster are too numerous and complex to list in total. They range from establishing low-interest loans to developing historical guidelines; from purchasing promotional banners to establishing a Teachers' Day among retailers; from establishing architectural guidelines and changing building codes to pushing through a $2.8 million street improvement project; from extending shopping hours to producing a holiday video commercial for the downtown business association.

Wooster now has 12 annual events in the downtown, not the least of which is a Christmas stroll during which all the retailers dress up their store fronts, many with animated figures. In a town of 23,000 people, between 5,000 and 6,000 came out for the stroll last year, Ms. Hull said. This year Wooster applied for a Great American Street Award, and they are still waiting to hear if they won.

The street improvement project took two construction seasons to complete, from 1992 to 1994. The changes included new benches, street lighting and upgrading all the utilities in the downtown.

"We buried every wire underground," Ms. Hull said.

Of the roughly $3 million for the downtown improvement project, $1 million was paid by property owners. It was difficult to sell the program to property owners at the start, Ms. Hull said.

"They'll be yelling and screaming," she said, but that changes.

"At first, they're your adversary. Now they're all my friends," she said. "I had 40 percent vacancy in my storefronts. Now I have 6 percent."

The tax base for businesses in the downtown has increased 30 percent. Sales taxes went from less than $2 million in 1984 to $5.4 million this year.

And now the property owners call her first when they have a problem, concern or idea, she said.

What Andover needs

Ms. Hull echoed a warning heard from another consultant who talked to the Andover group recently, saying that an anchor store is probably not what Andover needs.

One reason for that is that drawing a large anchor store takes an incredible investment of time, energy, money and possibly real estate. And it usually only nets a five- or six-year lease, according to Ms. Hull. At the end of that time, the store leaves and the town is stuck trying to fill the void.

"We have not gone for that. We have gone for a specialty market," she said.

She pushed the idea of a varied

Does Andover need a parking garage?

Some town officials and local business owners propose that Andover build a multi-level parking lot at the rear of the municipal lot at Olde Andover Village on Main Street. Since the lot drops down from street level, the top story of a two- or three-story facility could be at about the same level as Main Street.

Some want spring musical at Collins Center

By Neil Fater

Although Andover High School students were told the spring musical can't be performed at the Collins Center this year, some students and parents are hoping students might take the stage there after all.

Principal Ellen Parker met with drama students last Wednesday to talk about Andover High's construction project.

"They would like to get a group of students together" to convince town leaders to have the musical at the Collins Center, said Ms. Parker. "At this point, I don't know who they should go to first."

Sue Witham, a parent who lives on Farrwood Drive, said some parents are also interested in supporting such a change.

"We're well aware that their building committee is made up of volunteers," she said. "This is not to barrage them with criticism."

"It's a dream. Certainly, it would be wonderful. I guess that's the question we would ask: 'Is there any way?'" said Ms. Witham. "I don't know. That's why we have to ask the people closest to it."

lems at Andover High School last school year, the School Building Committee asked the town and High School to schedule after-school activities for other locations. As a result, student actors will perform the play The Diary of Anne Frank at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the South Lawrence East School. The South Lawrence East School is located at 165 Crawford Street, Lawrence, off of 114, and is visible from 495.

Bob Lague, the director of Andover High's performances, said the South Lawrence East School provides a good solution for the fall-play location problem.

The East School can seat about 350 people, and Andover High's fall plays usually draw between 200 and 400 people, said Mr. Lague. Students painted the set at Phillips Academy, and brought the set over to Lawrence East this week, he said.

But things will be decidedly different for the larger, spring production.

"He's definitely going to have to scale down his production and look for an appropriate place," said Ms. Parker.

Mr. Lague said he will probably have the play at Doherty Middle School's auditorium, which seats about 500 people. One of Mr. Lague's High School musicals has never drawn less than 500 people and has drawn as many as 1,200 people per night, he said.

So, with months remaining before the musical would be performed, drama supporters are hoping someone can figure out a way to have the spring performance in the Collins Center.

Ms. Parker and Mr. Lague both indicate the students will face an uphill battle.

"I don't think (it's likely) because we didn't intend for it to be here," said Ms. Parker, when asked of the possibility.

"It won't happen. We've already been told that we can't use it - perhaps even into the fall of next year. It's for the duration (of construction) here," said Mr. Lague.

"I don't think it's even possible that we'll have it open for the spring," he said. "That's the latest from the principal who certainly knows a lot more about it than I do."

Ms. Witham said she knows the arts programs are not the only ones to suffer from construction. Last year, sports teams had to significantly change their schedule because of construction delays.

However, she notes construction is not taking place at the Collins Center. Mr. Lague said they can't use the Collins Center entrance because construction fences, mounds and trailers are stationed in front of it.

Will center be worse off?

In related news, the Collins Center may be the only High School area that will be worse off after the construction project is finished.

While there are virtually no improvements being made to the Collins Center, the building has taken a beating during t construction.

"There had been some (maintenance) concern with the Collins Center prior to construction - just normal wear and tear. Last year, we used it for physical education classes," said Ms. Parker.

This year, the center has been used to store materials and was closed even to study halls by the fire department.

"They (architects) took our parking lot and made a baseball field out of it, which is brilliant planning on someone's part," said Mr. Lague.

"The question is - when the dust settles and the fields are up - what's left of the Collins Center? Is it anywhere near what it was when the construction started?" asked Mr. Lague. "We are mostly concerned with, when it's done, will we have the Collins Center left for public performances?"

retail mix of specialty stores for Andover, and pointed to the stretch of Barnard Street where The Butler's Pantry and Hometown Seafood are located as a good example of the type of stores she means.

She also cautioned jumping on board with the idea of building a parking garage. Instead, she recommends a consultant in the Main Street program who won't do a study, but will come to town and recommend how to make the best possible use of the space already available.

Ms. Hull also recommends delaying installing new lighting in downtown Andover. The group working on downtown Andover has been looking into getting new lights. They would be better off waiting until there is a plan for the entire downtown to see where lighting fits in, she said. Then, once the group is ready to install lighting, she suggests asking the Historical Society to research what type of lighting existed here in the 1800s, and consider finding replicas of that.

"The community will buy into that," she predicted.

Wooster already had zoning that only allowed retail business on the first floor of buildings in the downtown. But rather than strictly enforce the zoning, she found ways to work with property owners and prospective tenants to put retail where they wanted it, services where they needed to be, while keeping everybody happy.

She coordinated business hours so that most stores now stay open until 6 or 7 p.m. She said that stores that improved the rear entrances to their establishments saw a 35 percent improvement in new business.

The most immediate need for Andover is hiring someone to manage the changes, Ms. Hull said. She works 10 to 12 hours a day and is still the sole employee of the program, though Main Street Wooster is in the process of hiring a person to promote the downtown.

The unused Collins Center

While we generally don't condone yelling, we're apt to encourage some parents and other tax-payers to start yelling about the fact that we're not using Andover High School's auditorium – the Collins Center. Sometimes when people complain enough, officials get the idea they'll have to do something about the problem to stop the yelling. And we believe something can, and should, be done about this problem.

Sue Witham, the parent of an AHS senior who has been involved in the arts since sixth grade, wrote a letter Nov. 21, explaining how "infuriated" she is that her son won't be performing at the Collins Center this year. "The members of the chorus, concert band, jazz band and all-town orchestra are also being deprived of performing there," she complained.

So the AHS play, The Diary of Anne Frank, is being held in Lawrence, at the East School, tomorrow and Saturday. And where will we hold the spring musical? We say right here, at the Collins Center.

The Collins Center is not under construction. There is construction in progress near it, but not in it. It's time for this community to insist that the Collins Center be used.

They're our lights

Did you know that someone or some people have been vandalizing the lights on the Main Street trees ever since they were put up?

This community paid to light the downtown for the holidays. People spent anywhere from a dollar to $500 each to light up downtown.

The number of contributions tells us that people wanted to be proud of their downtown during the holidays, that the lights matter a great deal to Andover residents and business people.

If a lightbulb on a tree tempts you, or someone you know, think of a 3-year-old child when she first sees Main Street lit up. It's the joy of the holidays. Please don't spoil it.

And by the way, thanks to all who helped light downtown Andover.

Mammograms for younger women

By Perry Colmore

Ask a woman at what age she should have her first mammogram, and chances are, you'll get as many answers as the number of women you ask.

Two new studies that support the benefits of mammograms for women aged 40 to 49 will be presented next week in Chicago at the 82nd Scientific Assembly and Annual Meeting of the Radiological Society of North America.

Even though only 20 percent of the breast-cancer cases appear in women of that age, the cancer tends to be more aggressive in women of 40 to 49 than in older women. Until this time, most doctors have said a mammogram every two years will suffice for women 40-49.

Also next week, the National Institutes of Health is preparing to hold a consensus conference to address the issue of screening efficacy in women 40-49. Currently, the NCI says a woman's first baseline mammogram should begin at age 50, instead of age 40, the age the American Cancer Society and other medical organizations recommend that screening begin.

I never had a mammogram until I was 45. And I only had one that year because Nancy Reagan was in the news. She had breast cancer. I realized I had never had a mammogram so I asked my doctor to do one. So my very first mammogram showed calcifications, which signaled a biopsy, which revealed very early breast cancer. I, therefore, never had a baseline mammogram. My first mammogram was of a breast with cancer.

Obviously, from that point on, I had mammograms at first every three months, then every six months, and until two years ago, annually. I probably shouldn't tell you this part because I still believe in mammograms, and I want to encourage women to have them; however, a little more than two years ago, I had a so-called "good" mammogram in August. But five months later, in January, I popped (I say popped because one day it wasn't there and the next it was) a lump, which turned out to be pretty advanced breast cancer. That time I was 52 years old.

The first study that will be presented next week in Chicago is a Swedish report on a screening program of nearly 57,000 women in which the seven-year breast-cancer survival rate for those ages 40-49 was similar to the survival rate for those 50 and older. In that group, 671 primary breast cancers were diagnosed, of which 70 percent (472) were detected by mammogram. After seven years, the survival rate for women under age 50 was 92 percent, compared to 87 percent for the older women.

"Our study shows that the breast-cancer survival rate is approximately the same for women between the ages of 40 and 49 as it is for older women in a screening program with a well-documented, high diagnostic quality," said Eric Thurfjell, MD, University Hospital, Uppsala, Sweden, an author of the study.

In the second study, researchers from Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas found that women under age 50 were more likely than older women to have ductal carcinoma in situ (DCIS), a more easily treatable cancer confined to the breast ducts, than an invasive cancer that has spread. That's what I had at age 45: DCIS. According to W. Phil Evans, MD, medical director of the Susan G. Komen Breast Center at Baylor, an author of the study, this is evidence that DCIS may precede a more invasive form of cancer, and argues for aggressively screening

Recalling Jack Dennis, Alzheimer's victim

Editor, Townsmen:

It's November and Thanksgiving week. It's Alzheimer's Awareness Month. I'm at the office and I just opened the mail. A small, 6½ by 3½ envelope brings up memories that seem so far away, yet they really are barely a year past. I was on my new job only a few weeks, in the midst of the confusion of buying a new home and moving to a new town, when I learned that Jack Dennis, a very special member of the Senior Center, was missing from his home and a search was underway to find him. Jack had Alzheimer's disease.

The reality of that dreaded diagnosis came crashing down on his family, the Senior Center and this town. I was, and remain, profoundly moved by the professional and loving response of this community to an unspeakable event. We found Jack, but too late. He died, perhaps not knowing that so many cared and looked for him.

The envelope holds a short and simple note from Jack's family. With it is a check given in his memory to the Senior Center building fund. The note thanks us for the "wonderful treatment you gave him while he was with you." Well, Andover, Jack's still with us. And Andover is more than a town, it's a community that cares. My first lesson in Andover.

And because we care, we have a Senior Center. And, as Robert Fulghum suggests, every day we play a little and sing a little and paint a little and think a little and dance a little... and sometimes, we cry a little. And sometimes we look for Jack. And we realize what saying thank you truly means.

Interest in elections

Editor, Townsmen:

Your editorial in Nov. 21's edition of the Townsmen was a welcome reminder that although one election is women under the age of 50. (Of course, I agree!) The study included 3,734 women without clinical evidence of breast cancer who had a total of 4,428 breast cancer abnormalities detected by routine mammography between 1989 and 1995. A total of 1,181 primary breast cancers were found and classified as either invasive or DCIS. Of the 294 cancers found in the women under age 50, 173 (46.6 percent) were DCIS and 157 (53.4 percent) were invasive cancers. In the women age 50 and older, 325 (36.7 percent) of 885 cancers were DCIS and 558 (63.3 percent) were invasive.

"These two studies add to a body of literature that provides compelling evi-just over, there are others, just as important, to follow. While there will be great interest in the selectmen's races next year, voters will also elect two members of the School Committee, one town moderator, one Greater Lawrence Technical School board member and five Punchard Free School trustees.

The League of Women Voters of Andover/North Andover is dedicated to full, informed participation in the electoral process. To aid those who are interested in seeking elected office, we are sponsoring a workshop entitled Running for Office on Wednesday, Jan.

dence of the benefit of screening women in their 40s for breast cancer," said Robert Smith, PhD., senior director for cancer control for the American Cancer Society. "The advantage of mammography is that it can find tumors prior to the onset of symptoms and when prognosis and treatment options are much better."

My advice is this: All women should practice self-breast exam every month; and I believe women of 40 should have annual mammograms. I know many young women, even under 40, who have had breast cancer. Early detection is a blessing. Now we'll have to work on our health insurers to pay for mammograms for younger women.

8, in the Andover School Committee Meeting Room, at 7:30 p.m. Andover Town Clerk Randy Hanson and North Andover Town Clerk Joyce Bradshaw will discuss filing nomination papers and the legal process of forming a campaign. Denis Kennedy of the State Campaign Finance Office will be present to discuss campaign finances; and previous years' candidates will discuss their campaign strategies including the use of public forums and fund raising.

We invite anyone interested in running for office to attend.

Additional information on the workshop can be obtained from Voter Service Co-chairs, Nancy Raymond 470-0464, or Nancy Rainville 685-5735.

Reader takes on the building committee

Editor, Townsmen:

Well, here we go again. The building and planning experts of the Andover school now state that the new "gym" cannot be used for graduation. No bleachers or seats. It's too expensive. So - Merrimack College. (I hope Merrimack College doesn't listen to anything that the building brains of Andover schools say, if so, Merrimack College - gone!)

If one thinks that this is the last of it, you believe in the tooth fairy. However, I would like to point out something that goes to the heart of how things are run in Andover. It may be remembered that while some two years ago this same building committee while going strong, it was learned that free pizzas and dinners were being provided for these hard-working souls. Then one of the leading lights of town stated, "...well, if we could get such excellent planning and forecasts in town government, we would be lucky. It's worth a lot of small free things."

By the way, this same leading light is thinking of running for selectman. Then look at the bag job as characterized by The Eagle-Tribune of the appointment of a replacement selectman in Andover, on the excuse of expense, etc. Yet on a dime, they call special town meetings for almost anything. Oh yes, don't forget the famous excuse, "it's the building contractor's fault, it's the architects fault, not us."

It used to be the thing to say: "Oh those old-time politicians were crooked, lazy, deceitful, false," etc., etc. All I can say is compared to what is going on today and including this gang, those "old-time politician" were souls of propriety.

Kaplan Chiropractic Office

No one should have any trouble finding Kaplan Chiropractic Office. The sign for the office building at 200 Sutton St., North Andover, is easy to spot from the road, and there is ample parking. Dr. Michael H. Kaplan has offered a full range of chiropractic services in his bright, cheerful consulting rooms at this location for nearly two years and has recently expanded his practice to include Mark S. Messinger, Chiropractor.

There is no need to let aches and pains keep you from activities you enjoy, he says. Chiropractic is an alternative form of therapy that treats problems, not symptoms alone. Those seeking relief for a bio-mechanical problem can get help through chiropractic that they won't find in other medical settings.

Dr. Kaplan can provide relief from headaches, neck and arm pain, tingling in fingers, shoulder and middle back pain, lower back pain, hip pain, pain down legs, sports, work and auto injuries.

Same-day emergency service is available seven days a week. Chiropractic care is covered under workers compensation, auto accident and most health insurance.

Dr. Kaplan is now offering a special opportunity for a free complete exam and consultation, which normally has a $75 value. Phone (508) 683-4200 for an appointment.

Dunham, Jennings take Feaster Five 5-miler

Dave Dunham of Bradford looked back as he rounded the final corner to make sure he'd outpaced a stubborn Dan Verrington to take the ninth annual Thanksgiving Day Feaster Five 5-mile road race in 24:38. Verrington, also from Bradford, finished a mere 10 seconds back at 24:48. Dave Burnett of Wenham took third in 25:39, a full minute behind Dunham.

Two-time Olympian Lynn Jennings, of Newmarket, N.H., took first place for the women in 27:33, just ahead of Lisa Brady, also of Newmarket, (27:33), and Julia Kirkland of Harpswell, Maine, (28:19). Andover's Terriane McGettrick took fourth for the women in 28:29. McGettrick has had a top-10 finish eight out of the race's nine years.

Lynn Jennings, three-time world cross-country champ, two-time Olympian including a bronze in the 10k at Barcelona in 1992, six-time national cross-country champ and American record holder in the 10k, sprints toward her first place finish in the 5-miler Thursday.

She missed the 1989 race.

Eighteen-year-old Todd Collins was the top Andover finisher in 28:27, good enough for 29th overall. Ms. McGettrick was the top woman finisher for Andover. In all, 603 Andover residents finished the 5-miler.

In the 5k race, Guy Sterns of New Castle, N.H., easily took first in 15:51 over Kevin Andriolo of Tewksbury (16:54) and Cliff Staples of Beverly (17:08).

Kara Molloy of Westford also took first fairly easily for the women finishing in 19:23, well ahead of Emily Hampson of Exeter, N.H., (20:06) and Jen Rosman of West Newton (20:20).

Top Andover finishers in the 5k were Matthew Ely in 18:07, 13th place overall, and Kathy Geary in 22:20, which was 82nd place overall. A total of 294 Andover residents finished the 5k.

Nearly 7,000 took part

A total of 6,806 persons registered for the Feaster Five this year: 3,814 in the 5-mile race, 2,330 in the 5k and 662 in the Kids 1k. But roughly 1,200 didn't show up. A total of 5,497 participants completed the three events.

Temperatures were in the low 20s at race time but there was no wind, rain or snow.

Race organizers donated $1 from each entry fee to Lazarus House, which garnered more than $10,000 from the race including pledges from runners.

ESPN to air Feaster

The Feaster Five will be aired on ESPN's Saucony Running and Racing Tuesday, Dec. 17, at 4 p.m., and again Wednesday, Dec. 18, at 12:30 a.m. The ESPN piece is about five minutes in length.

All went well

"It all went off real well. I was very pleased with it," Dave McGillivray, race director, said of this year's Feaster.

"It went perfect," said Bill Pennington, co-director. "We have the same people doing the same job for nine years, so we're getting all the wrinkles out.

"The kids race was really the highlight of the day," Mr. Pennington said.

The more than 600 kids were divided into four age groups and each division had its own race, each starting about a minute apart.

Marathon great Bill Rogers and two-time Olympian Lynn Jennings talked to the kids at the start, and each participant received a water bottle, fanny pack and apple pie.

Mr. Pennington said the race had about 3,600 runners five years ago and that that really hasn't changed. The increase in participation has been in walkers and kids, he said.

"That's where the big growth is continuing. A lot of families are doing it," Mr. Pennington said.

Tenth anniversary next year

Mr. McGillivray said this week he is already working on next year's race, the tenth annual Feaster Five, and that he will try to bring back as many past winners as he can for the event. Bill Rogers and Joan Benoit have already agreed to take part. Mr. McGillivray said he hopes to do it up really big next year, but how much he can do will depend on the number of sponsors who come forward.

"It certainly was a transition year," Mr. McGillivray said. Marshalls stepping out of the role of title sponsor after last year's race reduced available funds by more than $40,000, he said, and some people were not even sure the race would happen this year. He said he hopes the success of the race last week resolidified the stature of the race.

It was a day for family members – nearly 7,000 of them

By Monique Vallee

"The difference is no one was in front of me this year," was Dave Dunham's response when asked by ESPN TV reporters how this year's race differed from last year's Feaster Five. Mr. Dunham finished second last year, but took top honors this time around in the 5-miler.

Despite the 25-degree temperature, there was a great crowd out to cheer on the runners.

Margaret Katzan of Kingston, N.H., came to watch her 61-year-old husband, Harry, who was running for the ninth time. Matt Munson, 14, came to watch his 15-year-old sister run for the second time. And Casey Rillaham, 13, of Stoneybrook Circle, was watching his brother and deciding himself if he would run it some day. "I don't know, maybe next year," was his response.

Some people traveled great distances. Henry Castonguay came all the way from York, Pa. He was in Andover to see his daughter, Linda Shaffaston, run the race for her third year in a row. He said it was a "great day."

A lot of the runners have been coming back year after year and enjoyed this year in particular. Bob Wallace, No. 3085, of Tewksbury has been running the Feaster Five since 1990. He described this year's race as "more organized." He explained, "They had the 5k and the 5-mile runners on different sides of the road. This made it easier."

There were also quite a few first-time runners. A few that even won. Both Maria Braz-Rocha and Lisa Brady were first-time runners of the Feaster Five. They placed fifth and second respectively in the 5-miler.

Terriane McGettrick of Andover is no newcomer to this race. She's only missed it one time in nine years, and placed in the top 10 the other eight years. She came in fourth this year in the 5-miler. When asked what she thought about the course, Ms. McGettrick admitted, "It's tough. It starts out with a hill, but I like it."

Margaret Katzan came to watch her husband,

Harry, who was running for the ninth time.

Race co-director Bill Pennington, said his mother, Charlotte, 72, of North Kingston, R.I., takes her training for the Feaster seriously.

"My Mother won her age group again. She's undefeated in three years," Mr. Pennington said.

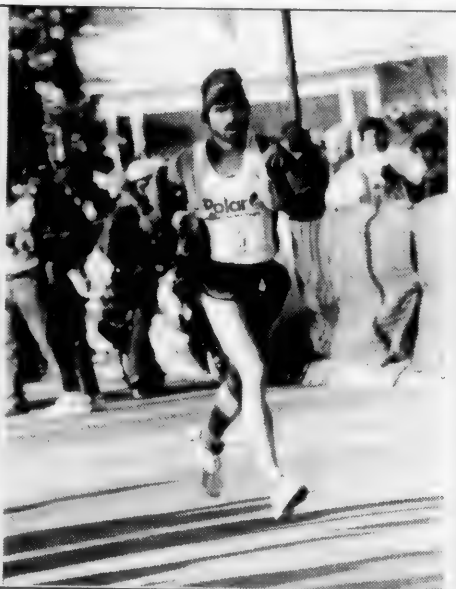

Guy Stearns races past the crowds on his way to a first-place finish in the 5k race.

Understanding Chiropractic

RAND'S TAKES ON RANDOMIZED STUDIES

When Rand Corporation (Research and Development Corporation) recently sought to assess the effectiveness of cervical manipulation on patients with neck pain and headache, it performed a comprehensive review of the research literature and found fourteen randomized controlled trials that met their inclusion criteria. Further scrutiny of the material revealed that the most reliable of these trials indicated that cervical mobilization provided a short-term benefit for acute neck pain. Furthermore, other randomized control trials of spinal manipulation provided a 23 percent increased probability of short-term relief compared to muscle relaxants. This conclusion is offered as but one more piece of evidence of chiropractor's effectiveness in providing relief for specific problems.

Study after study has confirmed the success of chiropractic for many types of spine related health complaints. At DeLORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, we recommend a continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups, which can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. Please call 475-5042 to schedule an appointment and let us help you lead a healthier life. We're located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. The sooner the chiropractor is able to see a patient after the onset of painful symptoms, the better able he or she is to provide relief.

Everything comes together in Warriors' final performance

By Rick Harrison

Since last August, when the first double session practices were held in the late-summer heat, the benefits and rewards of the "team concept" have been hammered home to Andover High football players by the Golden Warriors' coaching staff.

Three months later, in the biting cold of late November, everything came together in one outstanding final performance.

With quarterback Brian Tisbert the offensive catalyst, and the entire defensive unit meshing perfectly, Andover broke a five-year drought by shutting out Central Catholic, 9-0, before an estimated 3,000 frigid fans on Thanksgiving morning at Eugene V. Lovely Field.

It was the first time Tisbert and his senior teammates had tasted victory on Turkey Day, providing closure to high school football careers that would have been incomplete without this win.

Tisbert's memorable finale was underscored by a season-high 207 yards passing, including a 47-yard touchdown bomb to senior Ryan Games, and a clinching 28-yard third-quarter field goal that enabled him to close out his four years on the AHS gridiron with 190 points (70 this fall).

The heroes on defense included end Jeff Scott, linebacker Brian Flanagan, nose guard Tom DiLiegro and tackle Ted Crandall, each of whom recorded a key quarterback sack or tackle for loss.

Charlie Daher, Matt Muench, Craig Hartwell, cornerbacks Brian Jordan and Joe Maglio (interception), and safeties Ethan Murphy and Tisbert all figured prominently in the first shutout of the season.

"I'm not surprised by the effort or the outcome. The kids really came to play today," said an ecstatic head coach Ken Maglio, who may have secretly been wishing the season had just started.

Coming into the traditional game, Central had beaten Andover five straight, eight of the last nine and 11 of 14.

The triumph was the fourth straight over the second half of the season for the locals, who finished at 5-5 overall, while the Raiders saw their three-game win streak snapped as they fell to 6-5.

Warriors confident

"We knew we could beat them," said Tisbert, who stood on the frozen, slippery turf after the game clutching his helmet. "Some people didn't respect us because of the way we started the season (1-5). But we deserved more. We knew the 'real' Andover team. We've played well the past month."

The victory over Central followed impressive wins against Chelmsford (31-10), Dracut (34-7) and previously-undefeated North Andover (35-33).

"The running game dominated our offense most of the season," continued Tisbert, a standout baseball player who has yet to decide where he will attend college next fall. "We didn't have to throw as much as we did today."

"We felt coming into the game we could pass successfully against Central. The receivers ran great routes and made some excellent catches."

Tisbert, who entered the game with only 419 yards through the air in nine previous games, targeted five different receivers and hit seven of his last eight passes to finish the game 9-for-16.

Games caught two aeriels for 84 yards, Jack Glazebrook three for 54 yards, big 6'4" tight end Muench two for 40 yards, Jordan one for 17 before leaving the game with a left ankle injury, and Maglio one for 12 yards.

"We planned to throw the ball more than usual," offered coach Maglio. "We figured the footing would be bad (because of snow earlier in the week), and we were confident our receivers could beat their secondary."

"Our defensive play has been there all year. We had to wait for the offense to catch up. The whole coaching staff deserves credit, especially defensive coordinator Bill Ritchie who has worked hard all season with his group."

happened was out of our control.

"We had to throttle our running game down, and it was hard to generate any rush on the quarterback because of the mobility problems. Everyone was slipping and sliding, spinning their wheels, so 'Tiz' had plenty of time to throw because we couldn't get to him."

"In years past Andover had more of a sprint-out passing game," said Cassano. "Today Brian was dropping straight back most of the time and it was effective."

"Tiz is a terrific kid and a talented player. He did an excellent job. They made the big plays and we didn't."

Silent Rage

After breaking through the cheerleaders' huge sign that read "Silent Rage" as they charged onto the field before the game, the Andover offense did not make much noise in the first quarter.

The rivals exchanged three punts and neither team produced a first down until Tisbert fired a 25-yard pass to Glazebrook, bringing the ball to the Central 36 late in the opening period.

Games, who managed only 16 net yards rushing on 13 carries to finish the season with 747 yards on 126 tries, ran three times for 14 yards and a first down at the Raiders' 20.

After a short gain on the ground and two incomplete passes, Tisbert lined up for a 37 yard field goal try that had plenty of distance but trailed off to the left of the upright.

Central mounted the first of its two serious threats early in the second quarter, after Tisbert's missed field goal, marching from its own 20 to the Golden Warriors' 21 in 10 plays.

Jason Belkus, the game's top rusher with 39 yards on 16 carries, ran six times for 18 yards, fullback Joe Uliano added a nine-yard burst and quarterback John Sexton (1-for-11) produced his only completion of the morning to wide receiver Brian Wozniak.

The catch-and-run play to Wozniak covered 32 yards before Tisbert rode the Central end out of bounds.

On fourth down from the AHS 21, Central faked a field goal but the play was sniffed out by Jeff Scott who buried holder Dave Cavossa for a 15 yard loss.

"The play would have worked with better execution," said coach Cassano. "The receiver was wide open, all alone in the end zone, but everything went wrong beginning with a poor center snap."

Tisbert and Muench immediately hooked up on a 26-yard pass play, but four downs later Andover surrendered possession when a pass intended for Glazebrook was broken up by sophomore safety Niall Murphy inside the Central 20.

A holding penalty against CCHS and a Flanagan sack forced a Murphy punt late in the half, a 44-yard kick that took a Raiders' bounce and rolled to the Andover 36.

Tisbert quickly teamed with Muench for a 14 yard gain on a tight end screen, bringing the ball to midfield, and Games rambled three yards to the Central 47.

"The pass to the tight end was huge," said Cassano. "Our defensive back went for the pick (interception) and didn't get it."

Tisbert then unloaded the long pass to a backpeddling Games, who made the catch inside the 15 and raced

Brian Tisbert

Ryan Games

to the end zone untouched as two CCHS defenders lay sprawled in his wake.

It was Tisbert's third TD pass of the season, Games' second TD reception and his 10th touchdown and 60th point overall.

"I saw Ryan had two steps on their defensive back, so I aired it out and he made the play," said Tisbert. "The throw had a little distance on it (50 yards in the air)."

The touchdown came with exactly one minute left in the half, and the lead remained 6-0 when Tisbert slipped on the PAT try.

Tisbert heats up Andover's most impressive sustained drive of the game led to the insurance field goal at 6:12 of the third quarter.

Central took the second-half kickoff and came up inches shy of a first down after three straight Joe Uliano runs. Murphy punted and the home team took over at its own 18.

Tisbert fired a 17-yard pass to Brian Jordan, who injured his left ankle on the play, and came right back with a 15-yard completion to Glazebrook at midfield.

A Joe Maglio reverse netted two yards before Tisbert

Scott deflected a Sexton pass and Joe Maglio batted away a fourth-down aerial intended for Wozniak at the Andover four yard line.

Early in the fourth quarter a desperate Central team bypassed the punt on fourth-and-six at its own 37, but Daher stepped in front of a Sexton screen pass to Belkus and almost intercepted.

Niall Murphy took over at quarterback for CCHS on its next series. Operating from the shotgun formation, the sophomore lefty hit tight end Neil Finneran of Andover with a 17-yard sideline pass and two plays later found Wozniak at midfield for a 23 yard gain.

Joe Maglio then produced the only take-away of the game, intercepting a Murphy pass at the Andover 33 with less than four minutes to play.

Maglio fumbled at the end of his return, but Tisbert alertly pounced on the loose ball near midfield.

The Golden Warriors ate up precious time with a seven-play drive to the CCHS three yard line, the key play an over-the-middle pass from Tisbert to Games that covered 37 yards to the Raiders' seven.

Andover, more anxious to run out the clock than run up the score, inched to the three on two short Glazebrook runs. Games then lost four yards and Tisbert was sacked by Uliano for an 11 yard loss with 1:45 left.

DiLiegro and Crandall returned the favor by sacking Sexton for a six yard loss and, following a near interception by Tisbert, passes by Sexton intended for Wozniak and Finneran fell incomplete.

Andover took over hooked up with Glazebrook again for a 14 yard gain.

After Tisbert slipped and fell for a five yard loss, he made it 4-for-4 on the drive with a 12-yard strike to Maglio.

Tisbert scrambled to the right for nine yards and a first down at the Central 19, and two plays later he scrambled left for eight more yards.

A third-down Tisbert sneak came up a yard short at the Raiders' 10, so Tisbert gingerly approached a 28 yard field goal try and drilled the ball through the uprights.

It was the second field goal of the season for the AHS placekicker, who finished with six for his career including three as a freshman.

More importantly, it gave the Golden Warriors a 9-0 lead and put Central more than a touchdown and conversion behind.

Shutout preserved

Central took the ensuing kickoff and quickly drove from its own 19 to the AHS 29, the key play a 41 yard option pass from half-back Nelson Ovalles to the dangerous Wozniak who finished the game with four catches for 97 yards.

The march stalled and then fizzled, as

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

PREGNANCY AND ORAL HEALTH

According to a report issued by the ADA titled "Women's Oral Health Issues," expectant mothers may expect to experience several conditions linked to their pregnancies. For instance, inflammation of the gums (gingivitis) occurs in an estimated 60% to 75% of all pregnant women due to an increase in progesterone, which dilates capillaries, dampens the body's immune response, and alters the composition of bacteria in the mouth. As a result, certain bacteria are allowed to thrive which cause inflammation. Because this condition does not disappear after delivery, gingivitis should be treated with a visit to the dentist. In addition, a condition known as pregnancy granuloma (sometimes referred to as "pregnancy tumors" may occur during the second trimester. It is characterized by painless purplish blue growths that arise between teeth. Some disappear after delivery, while others require surgical removal to prevent a buildup of plaque.

Choose a family dentist who has a sincere interest in his or her patients' complete health, and who is up to date on the latest oral health care innovations. If you are looking for just such a dentist, we invite you to call us at 475-2431. All oral problems are dealt with efficiently, effectively, and compassionately. For complete gentle dental care for all members of your family, we're here for you at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93.

P.S. Despite the popular notion "a tooth for every child," pregnancy does not cause tooth loss.

It's all in the family — a family affair

Two of the top varsity soccer players at Andover High, brother and sister Tim and Jessica Smith, have both been honored by the Eastern Massachusetts Soccer Coaches Association.

Tim, a senior captain and forward/midfielder on this year's tournament qualifying AHS men's team, was named to the EMSCA Division I first team.

As a selectee, Tim played in the prestigious annual Senior Bowl Game last Friday at Silver Lake Regional in Kingston.

Jessica, a junior midfielder for the tournament qualifying AHS women's team, was named to the EMSCA Division I second team.

Because she is an underclassman, Jessica was not eligible to play in the women's Senior Bowl Game at Bentley College in Waltham last Friday.

She will, however, receive an award at post-game ceremonies beginning at noon.

Tim led the Andover High men's team in scoring this fall with 14 goals and three assists, while Jessica was the third high scorer for the Lady Warriors with six goals and five assists.

Both were named to their respective Merrimack Valley All-Conference teams.

Students performing in 'Nutcracker'

Several young local dancers will perform as part of the New England Civic Ballet Company's production of The Nutcracker. Meghan Bradley, E.B. McCarthy, Amanda Rikeman, and Erika Steele of Andover won their roles by auditioning with 125 young people from 11 area towns. According to Phyllis George, the company's director, "These performances will be unique because the company is composed solely of talented, dedicated young dancers. No base company rotates through roles; each one is cast from audition."

The Nutcracker ballet performances, Dec. 13-15 at Lawrence High School, open the City of Lawrence's 150th Anniversary celebration as well as the New England Civic Ballet Company's inaugural season. Performances are 7:30 p.m. Dec. 13, 7 p.m. Dec. 14, and 1 and 6 p.m. Dec. 15. The new ballet company aims to increase local opportunities for performers and audiences. "This area is filled with talent, and no one has yet touched on it. We have received tremendous support from everyone: officials, parents, dancers. The need and interest exists," said Ms. George, a former professional ballerina who danced for American Ballet Theater.

Roshni Pecora, the company's co-director, grew up dancing in the Merrimack Valley. "I auditioned for many companies' Nutcrackers, but the serious roles were never available. All the major parts go to the company members. I had to wait until I was a full-time professional dancer to dance those roles, even though I was capable much younger. For our company, you can dance the role as soon as you can perform the steps. Fifteen- and 16-year-old dancers are performing most of our major roles. I would have loved that opportunity."

For the young performers, this means they are center stage, the principal performers rather than just students supporting adult company members. "It's wonderful to dance a showcase role," says Amanda Rikeman, who will perform as a doll in the opening scene. But even children in smaller parts are enjoying their experience. According to Meghan Bradley, "Ms. George inspires even the youngest children to act as well as dance by getting them excited and into character for their role. That makes the dancing even more fun."

Tickets are available through Cabriole Dance Arts at (508) 975-0289.

Sarah Maltzman of 18 Bradlee Road will dance as an angel in the Dance Prism production of The Nutcracker in Andover Dec. 21 and 22. The daughter of Rich and Ellen Maltzman dances at Danceworks in Bradford. The show will also be in Concord on Dec. 7, Burlington on Dec. 8 and Newburyport on Dec. 15. Ms. Maltzman is a freshman at Andover High School.

***

Jacqueline Mimno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Mimno, has been chosen for the second year in a row to dance in the Boston Ballet production of The Nutcracker. She will dance the part of the Sugar Plum Doll. The 9-year-old has studied ballet for seven years, the first four at Andover School of Ballet and the last three at Boston Ballet School for Dance Education. The third-grade student at Pike School also studies piano.

***

Shelby Zalewski, a sixth-grade student at Doherty Middle school, is a member of Jose Mateo's Nutcracker cast for the fourth consecutive year. This year Shelby is one of the soldiers who carry the vanquished Mouse King off the stage during the battle scene.

Shelby has been studying ballet for three years at Ballet Theatre of Boston. She also studies at Sheila Rosanio's

School of Dance and Gymnastics in Revere and is a member of its dance team.

The Nutcracker will be performed at Lowell Auditorium on Sunday, Dec. 8, and at Emerson

Majestic Theater in Boston Dec. 10-29. Call Ballet Theatre of Boston at (617) 262-0961.

Nicky Nualpink of Thai Place

Thai Place Restaurant

The Thai Place restaurant has provided authentic Thai cuisine to residents in Salem, Mass., for the past six years, and now offers the same for the Andovers. Thai Place opened its second location eight months ago in the former Daniel Fuller House, next to the Middleton Golf Course, on Route 114 in Middleton, just 15 minutes from downtown Andover. The husband and wife team of Atitaya Mangklaratana and Nicky Nualpink own and operate both restaurants.

For those not familiar with Thai cuisine, Atitaya explains that Thai is a combination of Chinese and Indian cooking. While it can be hot and spicy, it is not as hot as some Indian curry dishes, and many mild vegetarian dishes are available.

able. "Thai food is healthy because you use a lot of fresh vegetables," says Atitaya. Thai Place also uses only vegetable oil, and does not use MSG in any of its food preparation.

The Pad Thai is probably Thai Place's most popular dish, stir-fried noodles with chicken, shrimp, egg, scallions, bean sprouts and ground peanuts. Or try the Siam Duck, a crispy roasted half duck on a bed or spinach topped with a house sauce. A popular seafood dish is the Salmon Choo Chee, salmon steak topped with vegetables and lemon leaves in chao chee sauce, "nice and hot."

Luncheon specials are offered daily. Thai Place has a full bar, and a variety of piano, light jazz and vocals provide entertainment on weekend nights.

Thai Place has a large function room to accommodate groups or parties, and buffets are available. There are also private dining rooms for smaller groups. Reservations are recommended for groups, especially on weekends. There is a large non-smoking section completely separate from the bar area.

Thai Place is located at 119 S. Main St. (Rte. 114), Middleton, just 9 miles from downtown Andover.

Hours are 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week, except Sundays, when Thai Place opens at noon. Telephone: (508) 777-7299.

Schools want your used computer

As another holiday season approaches, the Andover Fund for Education is once again urging Andover residents who are buying new computers to donate their old computers to the public schools.

This three-year-old project, supported by the Andover schools' technology committee and endorsed by the superintendent, has provided thousands of dollars worth of computers, printers, software and peripherals to the school system.

Ray Tode, technology integration coordinator, who supervises the placement of the computers in the schools, says "we make a special effort to place each computer in the school system from which the donation came." He notes that the computers should be Macintosh or IBM 486 models, or better, and in good working order. Call 475-5041.

Healing Hands - Andover Holistic Center

Healing Hands expands to Andover
Holistic Center

A collaborative of practitioners has come together to create Andover Holistic Center, offering the community alternative healing therapies that complement traditional medical care and on their own support the body's innate healing power.

Andover Holistic Center, 52 Main St.
in Andover, includes:

• Healing Hands - Experience the art of massage. Are you subject to the perils of modern life? Does your back bother you?
Your neck? Your shoulders? Or would you simply like to pamper yourself? Receive the benefits of nurturing touch as you escape from your cares for a quiet hour. Life gives us internal wrinkles. Massage can help iron them out. Call Helen Rose, 470-2772.

• Shamanic Energy Healing - Shamanic Energy Healing is the most ancient method of healing. It includes working with the Chakras, subtle energetic bodies, as well as the physical body. Healing luminous bodies facilitates changes over a relatively short period of months that would otherwise take years of traditional psychotherapy. Physical manifestations of disease are also easily treated. Call Cleveland
Bigelow, (508) 692-8839.

• TCM Acupuncture - Acupuncture is very safe and effective. Hair-thin needles are inserted at specific points in the body to correct imbalances in the body's emotional and physical energy. Acupuncture successfully treats a wide range of conditions, from the common cold to chronic fatigue syndrome.
Call Kathleen Petteruti, 474-9928.

• Reiki - Reiki is a natural healing method that releases blocked energy, promotes a state of relaxation and supports the body's natural ability to heal itself. Reiki offers relief from chronic pain, chronic and acute physical ailments, stress and emotional upset, and assists in achieving spiritual focus and clarity. Call Jane Shepard, 749-9562.

• Therapeutic Touch - Therapeutic touch is an energy healing modality researched and developed by nurses. It decreases pain and anxiety and facilitates relaxation and healing. A treatment involves balancing the energy field and does not require physical contact to be effective. Call Steffanie Mulloney, MS, RN, 470-1345.

Lawrence firefighters picket their mayor at Lanam Club

By Don Staruk

Roughly 80 Lawrence firefighters and officials from the state firefighters union and the International Association of Firefighters were protesting Tuesday night at the Lanam Club because Lawrence firefighters have been working without a contract for six years, and they have run out of legal recourse in dealing with Lawrence Mayor Mary Claire Kennedy. Gov. William Weld was inside the club, attending a fund-raiser for Mayor Kennedy.

Although Mayor Kennedy refused to come outside and meet with the firefighters, the governor did take time to talk with two union representatives, Robert McCarthy, president of the state firefighters union, and Michael Blanchard, president of the Lawrence Firefighters Union.

Firefighter Blanchard said the governor told them he was not previously aware of all the details regarding the state of negotiations between them and the mayor, and that he had spoken with the mayor and would speak with her again.

"There is a ray of hope now, I'll tell you that," Firefighter Blanchard said Wednesday. "Much of this sits with the governor. That was the intention, to go there last night and get the governor's ear."

The protest, which was billed as an "informational picket by the union, started at about 5 p.m. and lasted until about 8 p.m. or so. There were no problems and all the firefighters left peacefully after the governor and the mayor left the property.

Firefighter Blanchard said he appreciated the way the protesters were treated by the Andover police.

A handful of Lawrence firefighters break for coffee break during their protest at the Lanam Club on North Main Street in Andover Tuesday night. Gov. William Weld was at the club, attending a fund-raiser for Lawrence Mayor Mary Claire Kennedy. Lawrence firefighters chose to picket the event to draw attention to the fact that they haven't had a raise in six years.

"Mary Claire stop playing with fire" is what this firefighter's sign says. He was one of several firefighters protesting in Andover at the Lanam Club Tuesday evening.

Robert McCarthy, center, wearing helmet and light-colored jacket, president of the state firefighters union, briefs other union officials on the governor's plan to meet with him during the protest Tuesday night. At far left is Andover fire Lt. James Cuticchia, the only Andover firefighter in attendance at the protest. Lt. Cuticchia said he was there in his role as a member of the state's joint labor management committee, which mediates contract disputes for police and firefighter unions.

Victorian Treats: A jewel in the crown

Toast and Marmalade Series of Bridgewater Pottery

When Lucy Bernardin opened her doors back in April of 1993, she had a teeny little shop on Main Street. She expanded her space two years ago, by a move to 68 Park Street which has allowed her to greatly increase the number of unique gifts and treats.

The reason for opening the shop was simple - there was great demand for her handmade toffee. For years people had been telling her that she should sell her toffee, which led to the birth of Victorian Treats' Hand Made English Toffee. Today, Lucy sells her toffee through her shop, as well as her wholesale business. Victorian Treats' Hand Made English Toffee and her new Coffee Toffee can be found in Oregon, California, Maine, Kentucky, New Hampshire, Maryland, Texas, Pennsylvania and New York. Her biggest account, Dean & DeLuca, carries her products in their New York City store, as well as their Washington, D.C. store and their mail order catalog. The toffee which traditionally comes in cellophane bags (4oz., 8oz., 16oz.), also comes in hand made Kraft boxes (8oz., 16oz.), as well as may Victorian wrappings for the holidays. In addition to her shop and wholesale accounts, her toffees are perfect for corporate gifts.

Featured in the Boston Globe's Sunday Magazine "Hotlines" in March, Sheryl Julian, The Globe's food critic, said "the toffee is fresh and buttery with chocolate on one side only, a perfect version of this gloriously rich old-fashioned treat."

Victorian Treats' retail space, at 68 Park Street, is the perfect setting for the shop. It's nestled in a group of three buildings that house several other little shops that compliment each other and make people want to browse from shop to shop. Lucy Bernardin prides herself on the uniqueness of items in her shop. She imports Bridgewater pottery from England, and is the only one in this area doing so. "Bridgewater Pottery is made in Stoke-on-Trent, which has been the center of ceramics manufacture in Britain since the Eighteenth Century and in the city there has always been a strong tradition of design innovation and skilled craftsmanship." Bridgewater's pieces are very collectible and all of her patterns have the same creamy colored background so that they may be mixed and matched beautifully! "Their cozy traditional shapes and distinctive decorative techniques are the hallmark of this typically English range."

Victorian Treats also carries Whittard and Taylor's of Harrogate teas, in addition to lots of tea-related items and gifts. Although many of the things in her shop are from England (Christmas crackers, beautiful greeting cards, note cards, gardener's hand cream), there are many unique items from the U. S. In addition, she also carries lovely soaps and bath salts from Gianna Rose, silk and organza ribbons by the yard, gift books, tea towels and aprons, Best Friends cocoa, scone mixes, jams, chocolate body paint, lavender scented pillows, stuffed animals, beautiful antique button bracelets as well as necklaces made out of antique beads, buttons and Swarovski crystal, lovely bronze and glass pieces of jewelry whose glass is made and polished by master-craftsmen in Germany and the pieces are original designs from a studio in California. The list goes on and on. The shop is a browsers delight where you're sure to find unusual gifts for friends, family and business associates.

Victorian Treats is open Mon-Sat 10-5, Sun 12-5 through the holidays. Located at 68 Park Street, the shop phone is 475-5051

Easy holiday cooking with these pasta dishes

Pasta with pizzazz

Here's a marvelous meal that teams familiar penne pasta with Italian sausage, mushrooms, peppers and some tantalizing seasonings. It's wonderfully easy to make, with the help of cholesterol-free olive oil.

Penne D'Allessandria

6 red bell peppers, quartered, seeds and stems discarded
6 Tbsp. virgin olive oil
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
1 lb. mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup packed Italian parsley leaves
1 Tbsp. fresh thyme leaves, stripped from stems
1 Tbsp. fresh oregano leaves
2 garlic cloves, chopped
1 lb. Italian sausage, sliced (removed from casings)

1 lb. penne pasta
1/4 cup reserved pasta cooking liquid

Grated Parmigiano-Reggiano

1. Heat oven to 450°F. Cut pepper quarters into 1/2" thick diagonal pieces. Place in 13x9" baking dish. Drizzle with 3 Tbsp. of olive oil; salt, pepper to taste. Bake until peppers are charred on edges and tender, stirring occasionally, 30-40 min. Remove from oven.

2. Finely chop parsley, oregano, thyme, garlic together; set aside. Heat 3 Tbsp. of oil in large non-stick skillet. Add mushrooms, cook, stirring, over medium high heat until mushrooms are tender and golden brown. Add chopped herb and garlic mixture; saute, stirring, 2 min. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, transfer to side dish. Wipe out skillet.

3. Place sausage into skillet, cook, stirring, over medium high heat, until sausage is browned. Transfer to strainer, drain. To baking dish with roasted peppers, add mushroom mixture and sausage. Cover with foil. Keep warm in oven, set at lowest temperature.

4. Boil large pot of water. Stir in penne, salt, to taste. Cook until tender. Ladle out 1/4 cup pasta cooking liquid; reserve. Drain pasta.

5. In a deep platter combine pasta, red pepper, mushroom and sausage mixture. Stir to combine. Add pasta cooking liquid to moisten pasta. Sprinkle with cheese. Serves 4.

Warm and satisfying, this recipe is also lower in fat

Yes, you can keep that resolution to lose weight without sacrificing those warm and satisfying meals you most enjoy.

For instance, you can prepare a marvelous, rich pasta dish with cream sauce and then still smile when you step on the scale.

Such a dish doesn't have to be heavy or high in fat when its made with evaporated skimmed or lowfat evaporated milk, experts say.

Creamy Pasta Primavera is an easy, yet satisfying lower calorie entree that is a twist on traditional Pasta Primavera. The evaporated skimmed milk makes it creamy and the chicken makes it more of a meal than a side dish. Total preparation and cooking time: just 30 minutes.

Creamy Pasta Primavera

(Makes 6 servings)

3/4 pound (about 4) boneless, skinless chicken breast halves, cut into 1/2-inch strips

1/2 cup sliced green onions

1 clove garlic, minced

2 to 3 tablespoons olive oil, divided

1/2 cup each sliced green and yellow bell peppers

1/2 cup sliced zucchini

4 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced

1 1/2 cups (14.5-ounce can) recipe ready

diced tomatoes, drained

1 1/4 teaspoons Italian herb seasoning

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon dried red pepper

flakes

1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

1 1/2 cups (12-ounce can) undiluted evaporated skimmed milk or lowfat evaporated milk

2 tablespoons cornstarch

3/4 pound dry spiral pasta, cooked

Parmesan cheese (optional)

Saute chicken, onion and garlic in one tablespoon oil in large skillet over medium-high heat until chicken is no longer pink. Remove chicken mixture from pan; keep warm. Add remaining oil, bell peppers and zucchini; cook for 2 to 4 minutes. Add mushrooms; cook for an additional 3 minutes.

Add diced tomatoes, Italian herb seasoning, salt, red pepper flakes and black pepper; mix well. Mix a small amount of evaporated skimmed milk with cornstarch until smooth; pour into pan. Stir in remaining evaporated skimmed milk and cook over medium heat until mixture just comes to a boil and thickens. Return chicken mixture to pan. Serve over pasta; garnish with Parmesan cheese.

Casserole blends simplicity and original flavors

Hush Puppy Chicken Casserole is a family favorite that blends northern and southern flavors. It marries baked beans with stewed tomatoes, a smoky-flavored cooking sauce, dilled green beans and cornbread with a hint of maple syrup. Its fascinating flavor combination delights all family members, young and old.

Hush Puppy Chicken Casserole

box (8.5 oz.) corn muffin mix Tablespoon chili powder
boneless, skinless chicken breast halves, cut into 1/2-inch chunks
1-2 Tablespoons olive oil can (16 oz.) baked beans can (14.5 oz.) Mexican recipe stewed tomatoes, undrained Tablespoon smoky barbecue sauce
can (14.5 oz.) dilled green beans, drained
Tablespoon maple-flavored syrup

Prepare corn muffin mix to batter stage according to package directions; set aside. Sprinkle chili powder on chicken chunks, toss with fork to coat well. Heat oil in large skillet; sauté chicken over medium heat, stirring frequently until opaque; drain fat. Reduce heat, stir in Baked Beans, Tomatoes, barbecue sauce, and Dilled Green Beans. Simmer mixture 5-10 minutes, stirring occasionally until heated through; spoon into a greased 9x13-inch baking pan. Meanwhile, spoon corn muffin batter on top of bean mixture around outside edge of baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees F for 20-25 minutes or until topping is golden. Remove from oven and brush lightly with maple-flavored syrup as desired. Serves 6-8.

Calypso Cheesecake

(Makes one 9-inch cheesecake)
 1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
 1/2 cup flaked coconut, toasted
 1/3 cup margarine or butter, melted
 1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
 3 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
 3 eggs
 1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons lime juice or lemon juice
 3 tablespoons light rum, optional
 1 (20-ounce) can juice-pack crushed pineapple, well drained, reserving 1/2 cup juice
 2 teaspoons cornstarch

Preheat oven to 300°. Combine crumbs, coconut, margarine and 1/4 cup sugar. Press firmly on bottom and up side of 9-inch spring-form pan. In large mixer bowl, beat cream cheese until fluffy. Gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth. Add eggs, 1/4 cup lime juice and 2 tablespoons rum if desired; mix well. Stir in 3/4 cup pineapple. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 50 minutes or until set. Cool. Meanwhile, in small saucepan, mix remaining 2 tablespoons sugar and cornstarch. Gradually add reserved pineapple juice then remaining pineapple, remaining 2 tablespoons lime juice and remaining 1 tablespoon rum if desired. Over low heat, cook and stir until thickened. Cool. Spread over cheesecake. Chill. Garnish as desired. Refrigerate leftovers.

The Chocolate Almond Fudge Cake is a double-rich delicacy that bakes into a rich chocolate cake and an almond fudge sauce in just 35 minutes. Before the guests arrive, premix dry and liquid ingredients; keep separate until ready to bake. Combine ingredients and pop into the oven just before sitting down to eat. (Remember to set the timer.) Serve warm with a scoop of ice cream for a dessert that will wow your guests.

Chocolate Almond Fudge Cake

1 cup all-purpose flour
 1 1/4 cups sugar, divided
 1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa, divided
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup milk
 1 egg
 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 1/3 cup sliced almonds
 non-stick cooking spray
 1 teaspoon almond extract
 1 1/4 cups boiling water

Preheat oven to 350°F.

In a large bowl combine flour, 3/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup cocoa, baking powder and salt. In a separate bowl beat milk, egg, oil and vanilla; stir into flour mixture until thoroughly combined. Stir in almonds. Pour batter into an 8x8x2-inch baking dish sprayed with a non-stick cooking spray. In a small bowl combine remaining sugar and cocoa; sprinkle over batter. Add almond extract to hot water; pour over batter, do not stir. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until toothpick inserted into cake comes out clean. Serve warm with a scoop of ice cream. Makes 8 servings.

Christmas cookies are the heart and soul of the holidays. This recipe for Pecan Pralines is sure to please everyone you bake for.

Pecan Pralines

Makes 2 Dozen

1/4 cup light cream or evaporated milk
 2 cups granulated sugar
 1/2 cup water
 1/3 cup light brown sugar
 1/8 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 2 cups coarsely chopped pecans

1. Generously grease 2 large baking sheets.
2. In a small saucepan, warm the light cream over low heat. When bubbles begin to form around the edges of the pan, remove the pan from the heat and cover it tightly to keep warm.
3. Combine the granulated sugar and water in a medium skillet and bring to a boil over high heat, stirring until the sugar dissolves. Reduce the heat to medium and, gripping a pot holder in each hand, tip the pan back and forth gently until the syrup turns a rich, golden brown. This may take 10 minutes or more.
4. Remove the skillet from the heat and, with a wooden spoon, stir in the brown sugar and salt. Stirring constantly, pour in the warm cream in a slow, thin stream. Stir in the vanilla and the pecans.
5. To form each praline, ladle about 4 teaspoons of the pecan mixture onto the prepared baking sheet. As you proceed, space the pralines about 3 inches apart to allow room for them to spread into 2 1/2-inch rounds. When the pralines have cooled to room temperature, transfer them to a serving plate.

Frost third cake layer with chocolate; cover with fourth cake layer and frost Pound Cake on all sides with remaining chocolate frosting. Decorate top of cake with almonds. Cut torte into 8 vertical slices and serve. Serves 8.

Metamorphosis: A women's fitness club with a difference

A new women's health club is coming to downtown North Andover Jan. 6, 1997.

When you walk in the door, you will know that it's different from all the others. It isn't owned and operated by anonymous investors. It is run by Patty Berking, a Registered Nurse, Certified Aerobics Instructor, wife and mother. Her goal is to promote a safe, healthy, inviting atmosphere for women of all ages, shapes, sizes and fitness levels. She wants to remain small. "I want to know each and every member, not just by name but what their fitness needs are."

To provide a quality program, the class instructors have been hand-picked. "The most critical component of my business are the instructors. I really spent a lot of time observing and interviewing them. I wanted only the best: positive, motivating, accepting individuals who really care about the members. Their greatest asset had to be a big smile and a warm welcome." Safety is another important issue. "I want instructors who will observe carefully. We are here to get fit, not to exercise to the point of injury."

Although it is an all-women's club, Patty wants to dispel any anti-male attitudes. Her husband Chuck (who actually thought of the club name), and other male friends have helped to keep her "pumped-up" and have given her wonderful advice. While several co-ed, couples, and family programs are in the works, she still believes that the fundamental part of her mission is for women. "It's just that when you really get down to sweating, it's better to remove the psychological barriers that are often present in a mixed-gender environment."

Patty Berking is the owner of Metamorphosis which is opening soon in North Andover.

Patty is the first to admit that she isn't a "jock" or life long fitness fanatic. She became interested in aerobics a couple of years ago when she joined a small women's only club. She got hooked initially because of the positive energy that surrounded her, and before long, the results of her participation spoke for themselves.

"I'm really just trying to recreate that energy for all the other women who, like me, never saw themselves as particularly fit or able to achieve the next level. I want women to feel the way I do, that exercising is as necessary as eating, sleeping, and loving. It has to happen and on a consistent basis. The only way for this to happen is to find an activity that works for you. If walking the dog every day gets the goal met, do it. You don't have to join a club, but find some way to incorporate fitness into your life. You'll love the results."

Some planned programs include low and high impact aerobics, step, interval training, Yoga, muscle conditioning, and plans to include co-ed boxing. Seminars will be given on diet and nutrition, weight-loss programs, and martial arts. Personal training will also be available upon request. Circuit training equipment is also planned for the future.

Patty wants to provide the community with whatever it takes to get them as committed to fitness as she is. "Bring your ideas. Come if you've never been involved in fitness before. The one guarantee I will make is that you will feel welcome here."

Metamorphosis is located at 134 Main St., North Andover 01845 (building is at rear of street front, premises formerly occupied by North Andover School of Gymnastics). Classes are scheduled between the hours of 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. weekdays and Saturday mornings.

For more information (preliminary application and class schedule), write us at the above address or call 508-687-3800 after 12/22.
